Proviso West High School

The dedication of Proviso West High School on November 16, 1958, heralded the official realization of a dream. Beginning in the minds of interested citizens, Proviso West had progressed through a maze of drawing boards and construction work and emerged in the fall of 1958 sufficiently prepared for her first freshmen and sophomores.

This expansive architectural masterpiece boasts modern facilities and equipment, an excellent teaching and administrative staff, and room to expand to provide for future township growth. A decorative mosaic mural adorns the curved surface of the library-administrative building. Designed by Oscar Howe, the mural symbolizes the Sioux Indians' song of nature. Artistic patterns against a plain background provide the rhythm for the song. Against the backdrop of sky and sea, the mural reveals the medicine man, the flute player, an Indian baby in a cradle, an Indian doll, a fire and kettle in front of a tepee, a mystical bird, the eagle and the antelope, an Indian scaffold burial, an Indian horseman, and to balance the composition, the medicine man again. The Indians' search for the true meaning of life, the belief that naturalism comes before realism, the realization that an appreciation and understanding of na-

The completion of the physical structure marked the origin of another mosaic. This real-life mural is the panorama of activities at Proviso West. As in the mosaic in the mall, many tiny pieces each contribute a necessary segment to the whole picture. Freshmen and sophomores placed the first pieces . . . Every student; every organization, large or small; every dance, casual or formal; every contest, athletic, forensic, or academic; every project, simple or elaborate; every staff member, teaching or administrative; every one of you is an important part of this living picture. Each piece is a vital portion of the true representation of school life at Proviso West High School.

There is still a third mural at Proviso West — the first yearbook, the 1961 Mural. The Mural's job is to present the story of West's first year as a four-year high school . . . its panorama of activities, its human mosaic, its mural.

First Seniors Host on Freshman Day

On September 4, the eager members of the class of 1964 descended on Proviso West to be initiated into the mysteries of high school life. Although there was no hazing, it was a rare freshman who mastered the intricacies of lock combinations, numbering systems, school rules, and one-way stairs without needing any assistance. However, upperclass guides cheerfully helped the bewildered neophytes unravel their schedules and find the cafeteria, gym, or library. Freshmen also attended a special assembly, during which students and administrative leaders explained activities and organizations of interest to West's newest class.

Senior Libby Crabtree stops to chat with excited freshmen while selling pennants and buttons in the cafeteria.

Gymnasium Seats 3,200 Spectators

Exuberant cheerleaders bid for the crowd's school spirit.

On November 22, athletes and their parents attended the Fall Awards Banquet in the cafeteria. Numerals and letters for fall sports were awarded and outstanding players were honored. Don Skurauskis was chosen most valuable harrier with Tom Kresin as runner-up.

Other Provisoites had their day of glory when they obtained their scholarship medals. At special assemblies at the start of each semester, gold, silver, and bronze medals were awarded to students who distinguished themselves academically. This year, worthy members of the class of 1961 earned West's first gold medals, beginning a tradition of excellence at Proviso West.

Provisoites Earn Academic, Sports Honors

Students Relax in Leisure Hours

Morris Seeskin "studies" an edition of the Profile.

Two students find it difficult to stuff all their books and gear into a locker designed for one.

Fun-Loving

Daisy's Daze includes an amusing skit concerning the distresses of Little Nel.

Whether sipping cokes at a class party or bunnyhopping at "Klondike Kick," Proviso socialites enjoyed themselves at parties and dances. In October, Student Council held its annual fall dance. "Daisy's Daze" had a Li'l Abner theme which was cleverly carried out in the advance publicity and decorations. The hilarious hill-billy skit and the doughnuts and cider added to "Daisy's" success.

Later in the year, members of the class of 1961 danced and sipped chocolate milkshakes at the class party, "Baby Bounce." To augment this theme, senior baby pictures mounted on paper hearts were used to decorate the commons. Seniors voted for the "cutest babies" and laughingly bestowed upon the winning couple a heart-studded diaper.

Spring fever was on its way to Proviso when the junior class sponsored a dress-up day climaxed by an after-school coke-hop. While hundreds looked on, mock awards of silver coke bottles were bestowed upon "worthy" recipients.

Provisoites Enjoy Social Events

Girls' League members present a skit at the sock hop depicting social life in the Klondike.

Assemblygoers Discover Surplus of Santa Clauses

The all-school Christmas assembly planned by the Key Club was one to remember. Along with the usual fine presentations of holiday music by the choir and choruses, the program included a merry escapade involving the appearance of a black-bearded Santa and a white-bearded Santa. As each vigorously declared his validity, the other just as vehemently denounced him. What no one could deny, however, was that both proved themselves in the one capability that marks all bonafide Santas — delivering the contents of their bags.

The assembly climaxed a dress-up day sponsored by the senior class. A change in schedule was welcomed by the student body as it dashed from the building for vacation.

Mr. Stubbs doesn't seem to mind the obvious discrepancy in Santa's acoutrement as he accepts his Christmas Gift.

Future Homemakers display culinary masterpieces created for the Christmas season.

Helpful Guides Unravel Alphabet Mystery

Untangling the confusion of letters and numbers assigned to West's rooms presented guides with innumerable problems. While suppressing the desire to point a finger, they verbally explained halls, stairways, and landmarks to questioners. In various parts of the building, they stationed posts to assist bewildered parents, freshmen, and visitors at PTA meetings, Hospitality Night, and Open House.

Students who perfectly mastered the school layout volunteered their services through the Student Council public relations committee. Then sporting red and white guide pins, they cheerfully and courteously performed their duties.

Other students, having learned the room arrangement from E-165 to B-318, judged exactly the time required to move from class to class. With stops at lockers, chats with friends, and rules for one-way traffic considered, they maneuvered through the crowded halls.

Friendly PTA guides direct parents.

Last Exam Relieves Tense Atmosphere

Voting in Homeroom during March, Provisoites

With care and deliberation, Provisoites practice new homeroom voting procedures.

During early March, while some students day dreamed about balmy weather and Easter wardrobes, candidates for school offices busied themselves with writing speeches, appraising their own capabilities, and planning what to do "if elected."

After listening to speeches the previous day, the electorate went to their homeroom polls on March 15, and chose class, Girls' League, and Student Council officers for 1961-1962. Long after the last vote was cast, election committee members tallied, checked, and rechecked the ballots to secure accuracy in the final count.

Elect Class, Organization Officers

Before election results may be announced, Student Council Election Committee members make final recount to insure accuracy.

Multicolored Bows Adorn Provisoites

No sooner was Election Week over than Girls' League Bow Week began. Members sold bows in class colors, starting with seniors on Monday. Sales took place before school and in the cafeteria. By the end of the week, nearly every method of bow-wearing imaginable had been displayed, from buttonhole embellishments to shoe decorations.

Bow-buying and selling were not the only activities of Girls' Leaguers that week. Members spent long hours making last minute plans and decorating the gymnasium for the annual sock hop, "Klondike Kick."

West Students, Industry Exhibit at Science Fair

Emphasizing the demand for increased attention to science, local companies and Proviso West students combined their talents to make the first Science Fair a huge success. Projects ranged from conservation studies to computers. Viewers had the opportunity to observe themselves on television, play "21" with an electronic computer, inspect a human skeleton, and listen to radio signals from a scale model Mercury Satellite. The exhibits drew many visitors, including West families, grade-schoolers, and interested adults. An added attraction was Dr. Dan Q. Posin, the noted TV lecturer, who set the tone of the fair with his address, "Man In a New Era."

"It sets up an electrical correspondence to an actual physical situation and on the basis of the electrical circuits thereby set up, makes decisions and carries them out," says Bill

Weiher of his analogue computer which plays "21." Using his spare time and an idea from Popular Electronics Magazine, Bill spent six months building his machine.

Southern Elegance Charms Prom Couples

Stepping outside for a glimpse of springtime starlight, Ron Couture and Deanna Hepner reflect the elegance of the prom's plantation theme.

Enjoying the mall's romantic atmosphere, couples pause between dances.

Ron Predl and Karyn Prato comment on exquisite decorations within.

Memories of Four Years Unfold at Class Night

Addressing the Class of 1961, President Dick Murphy reviews the past and predicts the future.

Nearing the end of a high school career, seniors attended their final class-sponsored activity, "Along Rainbow Trail." The class night offered a five-hour session of eating, dancing, and reminiscing.

To launch the event, almost 300 students dined in the school cafeteria. After enjoying a delicious meal, they crossed the mall and joined classmates for the remaining ceremony.

From the bleachers, relatives and friends viewed the finely attired graduates-to-be as they proceeded into the gymnasium. Class of '61 members and guests relaxed while highlights of four years at Proviso East and Proviso West were presented in a skit. Following brief stops along the trail, the seniors arrived at two pots of gold representing commencement and post-high school occupations. The program also featured the exchange of the class token, a torch of knowledge adorned by the class colors, red and white.

At the occasion's conclusion, class members received 1961 Murals. They retired to the commons for autograph-signing and dancing to complete a memorable evening.

'61 Seniors March in Scarlet Caps, Gowns

On June 13, 1961, four years of study and activities came to an end for more than five hundred West seniors. Attending the commencement exercises, parents and friends avidly leaned forward as the class marched into the gymnasium to "Pomp and Circumstance." Arrayed in scarlet robes with caps set off by white tassels representing both school and class colors, the graduates presented a striking appearance. Because of repeated practice, the processional and en masse sitting were performed flawlessly.

The solemn ceremony continued through the invocation, the commencement address, and the long-awaited diploma distribution. Mr. Neil J. Gillies, Board of Education president, presented each graduate with the original Proviso West diploma, bearing an engraving of the mural.

After the last strains of the recessional faded away, the new graduates bade a last farewell to the halls, fun fests, and people of Proviso West.

Superintendent

Leroy J. Knoeppel

Superintending two four-year high schools consumes most of Dr. LeRoy J. Knoeppel's time and energy. He divides his attentions between Proviso West and Proviso East through the administration of educational policies and special student activities. In this way, he sees each student body developing a distinct character from one basic administrative pattern.

Dr. Knoeppel received his B.A. degree at Carthage College and his M.A. at the University of Iowa. For his outstanding achievements in education, Carthage awarded him an honorary Doctor of Laws degree.

Besides holding life membership in the National Education Association and affiliated organizations, he is actively a member of the American Association of School Administrators and the National Association of Secondary School Principals. He also participates in workshops, institutes, and committees whose programs are designed to improve public school education.

A good school meets the needs of the community it serves. By evaluating new trends and objectives and by stressing continuity in elementary, secondary, and post-secondary school programs, Dr. Knoeppel dedicates himself to secure this end.

"To mold a team which includes parents, students, faculty, maintenance, cafeteria, and office staff into a comprehensive high school such as Proviso West should give anyone a sense of pride," says Dr. Knoeppel in his third year as Proviso West's superintendent.

Dr. Knoeppel studies West's problems before reaching a policy decision.

Assembled in the board room during their October meeting, Board of Education members Mr. Robert Young, Mr. Sallust DeRose, Mr. Neil Gillies, Mr. Ralph Gust, Mr. Fred Meyer, and Dr. Ralph Barton attend the gavel of Dr. Louis Seno, board president, as Mrs. Hattie Haupt, board secretary, takes minutes.

Board Represents Citizens in School Planning

Scheduling faculty, maintenance, and secretarial salaries, supervising plumbing and grounds repairs, and planning Proviso West's physical growth, the Board of Education met regularly on the third Tuesday of every month. Open to the general public, the sessions occurred in the Board of Education room at Proviso East.

With suggestions from Dr. Knoepfel, the Board members formulated administrative policies for both high schools in District No. 209. They developed scholastic and athletic superiority in the community's students by hiring the best available teaching talent. They promoted academic achievement by purchasing enlightening texts and rewarding outstanding success.

As representatives of Proviso Township's citizens, these men worked to satisfy the desires of nearly eighty thousand voters. Professional and business people in their own rights, they handled the necessary financial business with brisk efficiency. In appropriating tax money to various funds, they used wisdom and foresight. The well-operated school system under the authority of the Board of Education, headed by Doctor Louis Seno, president, spoke for itself.

Assistant Superintendent

Edward W. Stubbs

Expanding Proviso West's facilities to meet a four-year high school's needs and attending educator's conferences to learn the latest administrative techniques kept Mr. Edward Stubbs fully occupied this year. As principal and assistant superintendent, he exerted every effort to improve the school.

One gratification for his long hours of work came when the North Central Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools accredited Proviso West. The Association found the school to have well-behaved students instructed in suitable classroom conditions by an excellent teaching staff. Mr. Stubbs has taken pride in the distinct atmosphere of study and deportment he has nurtured for three years.

He expressed his philosophy in a quotation from James Conant: "Our purpose is to cultivate in the largest number of our future citizens an appreciation of both the responsibilities and the benefits which come to them because they are American and free."

West's new status as a four-year high school provides Mr. Stubbs with increased organizational responsibilities.

With a thorough knowledge of West's detailed structure, Principal Stubbs spoke for the school to the community through such organizations as the Parent-Teacher Association. For curious audiences he answered questions on the number of dollars spent per student per year, the number of boys participating in the sports program, and the number of students predicted in future enrollment. These chores and many others he performed with the grace and dignity of his position as assistant superintendent.

Mr. Stubbs pauses before announcing athletic scores and coming events over the public address system.

Dean of Students

Hubert A. Pitt

Searching for the culprit who pulled a false fire alarm and speaking with parents constituted only a portion of Mr. Hubert A. Pitt's duties as Dean of Students. His official assignment included all students, not only those who were considered disciplinary problems.

Before assuming his present responsibilities, Mr. Pitt had experienced working with teenage leaders in Student Council. Thus, he expected some of the bold projects young people hoped to initiate at Proviso West. Unless the plans benefitted the entire student body, he vetoed them. He affixed his stamp of approval, however, to many schemes such as the Thanksgiving clothing drive, the Christmas post office, and the inter-organizational council.

From signing bulletins on behavior and posters for publicity to arousing emotions at senior gatherings and enthusiasm at pep assemblies, the Dean received the admiration and respect of the twenty-eight hundred West students. His down-to-earth attitude generated in the students a willingness to cooperate; therefore, they accepted his direction and coordination of their activities with appreciation.

Administrative Assistant

Arthur E. Vallicelli

Sharing the burden of administrative responsibility with Mr. Stubbs, Mr. Arthur Vallicelli performs a variety of tasks daily. From answering student queries on new policies to directing the preparation of the daily bulletin, he solves a host of problems.

Far from inexperienced in the problem-solving business, he applies the same psychological techniques as Administrative Assistant that he did as a counselor. Until this year he headed the guidance department at Proviso West, broadening his background for his present position of authority.

Now "Mr. Val" guides the IBM machine's operation through the work of program cards and report cards. Because of his tirelessness, teachers receive class lists and students obtain transfers promptly. The painstaking care he demonstrates in all his duties enables the school to maintain organization throughout the year.

Adjusting freshmen to the hectic ways of high school presented the freshman boys' counselor with his first task of the year. The follow-up, enrolling students for their three remaining years at West, came shortly afterwards.

More of the same and additional challenges faced sophomore, junior, and senior counselors. They acquainted transfer students with school life; they untangled enrollment difficulties for boys; and they prepared young men for their futures.

As a confidante, the counselor heard boys' scholastic, financial, and family problems. His objective observation of the situations plus his previous experience in guidance aided the counselor in furnishing welcome recommendations.

Approximately 325 students received instruction from each counselor every week. To explain new regulations, supply immediate answers, and mold strong characters for everyone required almost superhuman interest and patience. When efforts to make the school year successful proved fruitful, members of the Boys' Counseling Department accomplished their aims and felt rewarded.

Handle Problems With Positive Treatment

Accentuating the positive and eliminating the negative — that busied the women counselors for two semesters. They corrected disciplinary failings, filed personality reports, and posted job opportunities for all Proviso West girls. By urging neat appearances and proper social skills, they trained young ladies in worthy habits. They also helped girls achieve the emotional stability that carries into life after high school.

Aptitude and personal interest were emphasized through pamphlets and conferences, aimed at girls' interests in vocational investigations. Study habits, organization and skills necessary for college were discussed in their futures.

Through counseling classes, girls gained a better understanding of themselves. In group sessions taught them to analyze their own pressing problems while giving each girl a chance to work

Self-Expression Dominates English Scene

The lyric and the narrative, the gerund and the infinitive, the plot and the theme, the Romantics and the Lost Generation—these all were a part of the comprehensive English curriculum offered at Proviso West. The study of such well known works as Julius Caesar, Ivanhoe, Silas Marner, and "The Raven," widened students' horizons and enriched their knowledge of the culture that has molded our lives in the West.

Grammar and composition, so often tedious, yet so vital in our relations with others, loom ever more important in the present with the increasing need for men to communicate clearly with each other.

For the first time at Proviso West, the ponderings of ambition driven Macbeth, his unscrupulous wife, and the cackling witches occupied students' thoughts. Proviso's faculty-edited Handbook of Good Usage made its debut in September, as did senior term papers later in the year.

As students realized the basic necessity of mastering their own language, the English department — one of our most important — fulfilled its duty.

Sine, tangent, concentric, Pythagorean — these were terms of a new vocabulary that at first puzzled and bewildered Proviso's math students. Many equations later, however, junior-grade mathematicians easily parried these and more difficult terms back and forth over the clatter of chalk and scratching of pencils.

Though all students profited from the diversified curriculum, advanced students derived particular benefits by pursuing courses in calculus, college algebra, trigonometry, and other aspects of higher mathematics. They delved deeper into previously acquired concepts, searching for the "why's" and "how's" of each exercise.

Finding the domain of  $x$  and the range of  $y$  and sketching loci of sets taught students to analyze problems for themselves. Provisoites grasped the traditional essentials of mathematics through up-to-date learning techniques. On a basis of fundamental assumptions, or properties, students built a system of logic and reason. All classes placed emphasis on mathematical structure rather than on blind application of rule and varied only in level of difficulty. Through this modern comprehensive program, the mathematics department served 1,500 students.

Science Fair Displays Creative Projects

The pungent, obnoxious odor of hydrogen sulfide, the delicate perfection of a monarch butterfly, the crystalline splendor of a geode — these revelations were but a few of the discoveries made by students in Proviso's science department.

Combining superior instruction with exploration in sparkling new laboratories, the science curriculum continued to challenge and stimulate the students. In the laboratory, young Pasteurs, Curies, and Newtons applied the principles and viewed the phenomena that led to some of science's greatest advances. This year a new course made its appearance here. Titled Advanced Biology, it gave interested upperclassmen the opportunity to further their knowledge of the most important of the life sciences.

Colorful wall charts and the slide projector helped provide students with clear pictures of otherwise hard-to-grasp scientific details. Also in use were the latest textbooks, containing authoritative information, which, when coupled with new teaching methods, speeded up scientific learning.

Meeting the great challenges in science today, the science department helped interest students in related careers and emphasized the part science has played in man's story.

Language Studies Accentuate Distant Cultures

The musical tones of Spanish and French and the guttural sounds of German and Russian combined with ancient pronunciations of classical Latin in the language department. This year the department fully inaugurated a new teaching approach, the aural-oral method. By engaging in the lively art of conversation, students perfected their use of modern languages.

Pupils of the eight language teachers could not escape the usual declensions, conjugations, and translations. Clever skits, college speakers, and bright displays, however, supplemented the usual materials. Tape recordings, films, and slides also enhanced the course of study. Through such modern techniques as the language department had at its disposal, 850 students achieved a greater understanding of their counter-parts in foreign lands.

Just as language itself is an integral part of man's relations with his fellows, the language department occupies such a role in Proviso's curriculum.

Contemporary History Explores World Issues

From civics to psychology, students in the social studies department delved into subjects covering a vast range of time and ideas. Through movies, lectures, and other aids class members relived the careers of Charlemagne, Gautama, and Churchill; the empires of Nero, Asoka, and Alexander rose and fell on a map and time charts. Expounding and haggling over the theories of Rousseau, Wilson, and Hitler, future citizens put their new-found knowledge to the test with the advent of nine-week and semester exams.

New courses and new teaching methods left their mark on the department this year. Contemporary History, which surveyed the present world situation through discussion and reading and emphasized research on various topics, was opened to selected seniors last fall. Other subjects new to West included Far Eastern History, Modern History, Economics and Political Science. One of the innovations in teaching methods was the use of taped lectures by authorities in various fields, played back for the students.

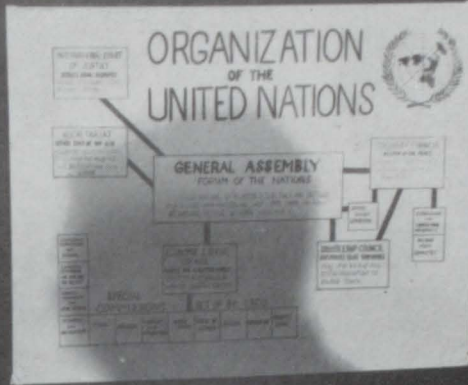

By acquainting students with the places various peoples and nations have occupied in the panorama of civilization, the social studies department helped students to realize their importance as individuals in a social conscious world.

THE UNITED NATIONS

Future Retailers Conquer Sales Resistance

The noisy clatter of the typewriter, the drone of a voice intoning into the dictaphone, the steady hum of the ditto machine — these all reflected the interest in the curriculum of Proviso's commercial department.

Instruction was varied and tailored to a student's needs and aptitudes in the wide range of courses available in the department.

Future retailers mastered the "soft" and "hard" sells, would-be file clerks and accountants learned proper office procedures, and aspiring secretaries crammed for tests in typing and steno. Another educational feature was the distributive education sequence for students interested in sales careers. Many of these students also got credits for working in retailing jobs in the community. Also related to the department was the Future Business Leaders of America Club for future tycoons, girl Fridays, and organization men.

By training students for immediate and more distant business-related careers, the commercial department contributed to the efficiency of the modern business world.

Plackets, Darts Confound Future Homemakers

Tasty, effervescent punch, colorful cookies, and novel, eye-catching decorations appeared at the faculty Christmas tea as evidences of home economics department training. At this affair girls enrolled in Home Planning received an opportunity to apply the techniques they had learned during the semester.

Scraps of fabric, strands of thread, and feelings of accomplishment remained at the end of a clothing assignment as proof that students had completed their garments. After discussing trivialities, repairing sewing machines, and borrowing equipment, the girls modeled their meticulously neat finished products.

Classes of Foods I and II studied nutrition, emphasizing the seven basic foods in a proper diet. Preparation of savory dishes provided the girls with experience they will need as modern homemakers.

Stressing the need for girls to become efficient and pleasing homemakers tomorrow, the department fulfilled its role in the panorama of educational opportunities.

Industrial Arts Provides Vocational Training

The whir of the lathes, the high-pitched whine of the electric saw, the slam of car doors — these all became familiar sounds to the 850 boys (and one girl) working in the industrial arts department.

These students prepared for vocations and trades in many fields. In their freshman years, would-be craftsmen or mechanics pursued general exploratory courses, later branching out into more specialized ones, such as machine shop, electricity, drafting, printing, or auto mechanics.

All benefited from the new equipment, which included new machinery in the electrical and auto shops, and innovations in the drafting room.

Boys in the industrial arts department contributed many services to the school such as printing tickets and programs, repairing teachers' cars, and exhibiting their accomplishments at an open house.

By helping students interested in manual and mechanical careers to decide on the vocations best related to their capabilities, the industrial arts department occupied a vital part of the educational scene.

Ceramics, Oils Exhibit Students' Creativity

Rubbing rubber cement off the fingers, cleaning the paint-streaked sink, getting steel wool slivers — these were some of the less glamorous and enjoyable aspects of arts and crafts at Proviso West. Nearly every student would admit, however, that an occasional paint smeared blouse or textbook was worth the end result — a scenic landscape in oils, a tempera abstract reminiscent of Picasso's earlier days (very early to be sure), or a graceful ceramic piece.

This year a new course was added to the art curriculum — humanities. It dealt with the history and appreciation of art, music, and literature and was open to both juniors and seniors. The new craft room was also opened this year, and the faculty of the department was increased to three.

By having its students discover through experience in the department the joys of the aesthetic, creative world, the art department did its part to enrich and enlighten life at West.

Practice, Concerts Sharpen Musical Talents

MR. IRWIN W. BELL, M.A: Department Chairman; Oklahoma! Musical Director, Vocal Ensemble Program. MR. CARROLL H. SIMMONS, M. Mus. Ed. MISS DONNA ZIMMERMAN, B. Mus. Ed.

The spirited rhythm of a march tempo drifting into classrooms on pleasant fall mornings and the harmonious blend of perfect pitches filling E-building on chilly winter afternoons reminded faculty and students that the music department was constantly preparing for an event. Besides contributing talent to the Oklahoma! chorus and orchestra, Provisionally-trained musicians entertained attentive audiences inside and outside the community. Instrumentalists and vocalists also journeyed to other schools to compete in statewide music contests.

For their annual concerts, members of Orchestra and Frosh-Soph Band rehearsed diligently. Concert band musicians brightened the scenes at pep assemblies and basketball and football games with their cheerful red uniforms and their sparkling rendition of the school song.

Choral groups, such as Freshman Girls' Chorus and Boys' Chorus, performed at their yearly program for proud parents and friends. Advanced Girls' Chorus and Choir members added spirit to the holiday season by caroling in the halls and singing at the all-school assembly the day before Christmas vacation.

Boys Learn Value of Recreational Sports

Perfecting previously assumed bowling skill with plastic balls and pins, improving formerly acceptable coordination with chinning bars, and toning up rarely used muscles with weight-training equipment developed the physical endowments of Proviso West boys. Such modern techniques as films and filmstrips aided students in visually learning the basic fundamentals of new sports. Students also acquired a working knowledge of the prevention and cure of illness in hygiene and first aid courses provided by the boys' physical education department.

Under the extensive driver training program, members of the sophomore class studied safety rules of the road and the consequences of disobeying those rules. Upper-classmen, too, received a chance to "drive" in a classroom, testing their reflexes on Drivo-Trainers while movies flashed on a screen before them. Behind-the-wheel instruction enabled students to receive their driver's licenses and to capably cope with the traffic problems of today.

The ten department teachers managed to work into their full schedules time for coaching teams in league competition. They also directed intramural athletics, such as swimming, wrestling, and track, in which every boy was allowed to participate.

Girls Improve Agility Through Gymnastics

The changing pattern of red suits racing up and down the playing field, the slap of bare feet on the floor of the dance studio, the clatter of a badminton racquet dropped on the gym floor — such were the sights and sounds peculiar to girls' physical education.

Girls took part in both active sports — basketball, speedball, and softball — and less strenuous ones — shuffle-board, ping-pong and archery. They also absorbed classroom courses like home nursing, first aid, and hygiene.

For girls who wanted to further their interest in sports and physical activities, the department sponsored the Girls' Athletic Association, and the Orchesis Modern Dance Group. The latter created and acted in the dance sequences for Oklahoma!

Synchronized Swim, another departmental activity, served girls interested in aquatics. The high point of the year for them was the water show presented in the spring.

As girls recognized the necessity of sound physical condition and reaped some of its benefits, the girls' physical education department contributed its part to the totality of the Proviso West picture.

Clinic Increases Abilities

Struggling to keep up with the reading accelerator, building and strengthening one's vocabulary, discovering ways to improve comprehension — these were familiar responsibilities to the Reading Clinic.

Under the careful guidance of Mrs. Merz, students worked to better their reading and vocabulary skills. Giving up a study period in order to embark upon this no-credit course, these Provisoites demonstrated their interest in self-improvement and illustrated their realization of the necessity and importance of good reading and study habits in successful academic work.

With the help of the Reading Rate Controller, Mrs. Lorraine Merz aids a student in testing her reading speed.

Nurses Treat Illnesses

Winding tape around sprained ankles, detecting symptoms of illness, checking students returning to school — these were some of the myriad duties of Proviso West's school nurses, Miss Myrtle Gould and Miss Dolores Garramone. Entrusted with the task of guarding the health of Provisoites, these two ladies could be seen nearly every day scurrying about their office, typing absence reports, giving shots to the staff, or administering welcome first aid.

In addition to these duties, the nurses also sponsored the Future Nurses of America Club for girls interested in the nursing profession. The club made trips to many hospitals, listened to career speeches, and held fashion shows and teas. The nurses played a vital role in keeping Proviso strong.

Registered nurses Miss Myrtle Gould and Miss Dolores Garramone demonstrate uses of the audiometer and the good-light eye-tester which are employed to find students' ear and eye defects.

As Mr. Richard Gusloff explains the fundamentals of plexiglas craft, boys from the Special Education class follow his directions.

Special Education Stresses Useful Skills

As he learns to figure out income tax forms, read highway signs, and fill out applications, the Special Education student makes many advances toward responsible adulthood.

In its teaching, Special Education emphasizes useful attainments vital to successful living rather than abstract concepts. Activities of the students in the department include working in a functional way, making election maps to understand current news, and studying living animals to enjoy the wonders of nature.

In these ways Special Education exemplified the purpose of American Education: to provide opportunities for education to all.

Library Yields Answers to Research Problems

To find the meaning of "interdigitation," to complete a map of nineteenth-century Europe, or to report the death of Shelley, students filled the library. They discovered an infinite number and variety of subjects to be explored in the reference alcove.

The library held a mass of materials meaning little or nothing to the incoming freshmen until librarians oriented them during their English periods. With mysteries of the card catalogue and the Dewey Decimal System unraveled, the new students enjoyed assignments which required library work. Upperclassmen needed a reacquaintance with the school's informational facilities when writing term papers.

Even with some irregular happenings in the library, activities proceeded smoothly. Library pages maintained alphabetical order on the fiction shelves, in the college catalogue section, and in the pamphlet files. Overdue book slips continued to arrive in homerooms daily. This efficient organization of library operation allowed the many patrons to search and study with pleasure.

Secretaries Handle Complex Office Affairs

Through the efforts of Mr. Edward Bos, all Proviso West students receive aptitude, skill, and interest tests. Based on those tests' results, they choose their most promising courses from the extensive curriculum co-ordinated by Mr. Bos.

To "feed" the voracious IBM machines, handle the voluminous paper work for nearly three thousand people, and politely answer student and faculty queries was more than enough to keep Proviso West's secretaries in a state of frenzied activity. The business staff collected rental fees and distributed books while the attendance secretaries compiled absence sheets and issued admits. Still other secretarial duties included directing inter-school correspondence, manning the switchboard, and cutting stencils for tests. Another service, well-remembered by college-bound seniors, was the completion of transcripts of credit in the college scramble. Endlessly filing, sorting, and typing, our secretaries provided the many behind-the-scenes services that kept Proviso West running smoothly and efficiently.

Cafeteria Staff Brightens Midday Meals

Adding personal touches to meals for more than 2,800 people, cheerfully changing five-dollar bills for milk purchases, and creating special culinary treats for banquets regularly challenged the Proviso West cafeteria staff. Besides periodically adding little surprises such as orange pop-sicles, candy canes, and pretzel sticks, the staff heightened holiday moods with such specials as the Thanksgiving and Christmas turkey dinners.

Not enjoying bankers' hours, cafeteria employees built up to the mid-day climax with hours of peeling, slicing, seasoning, and cooking. As an anti-climax, task forces of maintenance men aided the kitchen staff in cleaning tables and sweeping and washing floors. The ladies restored the stainless steel appointments and appliances to their former polished gleam, and the cycle was ready to start again.

Maintenance Crew Works Around the Clock

Perhaps most students accepted plowed parking lots and sidewalks as a matter of course on snowy days, but this was just one evidence of the part the maintenance staff played in keeping Proviso West a clean and comfortable place. Maintaining and cleaning a huge plant demands efficient organization, provided by Richard Werner, Supervisor of Buildings and Grounds, and Gus Ruehmer, foreman of the maintenance staff of twenty-six men.

Still the maintenance crew remained behind the scenes in the view of the student body except in cases of dire emergency — such as Arctic temperatures in a classroom, a broken window, or a slushy corridor. Then the importance of this staff received recognition.

Student Council Initiates Christmas Post Office

Seated: Logan Dugaw, vice-president; Libby Crabtree, co-op study halls; Sharon Marsh, tickets; John Walsh, supervisors; Carole Kray, decorations; Dona Vitense, loyalty; Mr. Donald Wright, sponsor; Karen Christensen, treasurer; Ruth Thumberger, secretary; Bill Harrison, president. Standing: Charlene Thorsen, social; Jan Forsgren, publications and constitutions; Karen Skoglund, Interim League representative; Carol Bokorney, public relations; Karen VanderMolen, entertainment; Fran Cernocky, corresponding secretary; Lynn Furguson, elections; Rich Kvale, monitors.

Whether busily scurrying in and out of the Council Office, pouring cokes at fun nights, or planning the Elections Assembly, the Proviso West Student Council worked long and hard to carry out its aims — promote the general school welfare, better student-faculty co-operation, and instill higher standards of conduct and school spirit.

Captains, Supervisors Control Student Traffic

In order to fulfill so many duties, the Council had to be a large, but well organized group. This was achieved by having the Cabinet members—officers and committee chairmen—meet every Tuesday during 3rd period to solve immediate problems, discuss plans and goals, and perfect the many details surrounding a proposed dance or banquet.

Two Council-sponsored groups that nearly every Proviso student is familiar with are Assembly Supervisors and Monitor Captains. Riding herd on the mob before and after pep assemblies, concerts, and class specials, the Assembly Supervisors did an efficient job in preserving order among the throngs of students. The Supervisors also served West by manning the guard ropes to keep the spectators off the playing floor at basketball games. The Monitor Captains led the Monitor system, responsible for keeping the halls clear of unauthorized traffic during class periods. Hall monitors collected attendance reports at the start of each period.

The Council also sponsored student-supervised study halls. To be eligible for a co-op study hall, a student had to be recommended by two teachers and his counselor. Supervised by student chairmen, co-ops met during all periods.

The importance of the Council's role at West may be seen in the profusion of functions and services connected with it, such as the Red Book, Fun Nights, Charity Week, "Daisy's Daze," All School Elections, "Rue D'Amour," Proviso Calendar, PTA Guides, and Interim Get-Together.

Sponsored by the Westchester Kiwanis Club, the forty-three member Key Club performed many valuable services for Proviso West throughout the year.

Included among the year-long projects was the Leukemia Drive in October, during which the industrious members of the club canvassed thirty-five sections of the Melrose Park community to obtain donations for the Leukemia Research Foundation. The boys also aided in building signs for the campus, serving as guides at PTA meetings and open house functions, and performing many services for the school and community, among them the April car wash. In May the club sponsored a safe-driving Road-E-O for West's students.

The club, under the joint sponsorship of Mr. Ed Himes and Mr. Leo McClard, had regular meetings every Tuesday before school.

Discussing the annual Sock Hop which climaxes Bow Week are Girls' League officers Irene Meros, president; Judy Brown, vice president; Carolyn Ober, secretary; Sue Sergey, treasurer.

Proviso West Girls' League selected the welfare of Chicago Area Indians as their annual charity project. The activity was sponsored jointly with the Student Council and resulted in a clothing and food drive.

The Girls' League Board and sponsors, with the help of homeroom representatives, planned activities to highlight the Girls' League year.

Fashion conscious girls attended "Lavender Mist" early in September. The warm fall days brought "Indian Summer" at which a few girls joined with some of the Chicago Indians in tribal dances.

Make-up classes were conducted weekly after school ending with the program "How Does Your Mop Flop, III," a Girls' League tradition. Stringing yards of cranberries and popcorn, the members prepared for the "Frosty Frolic," a gala Christmas entertainment.

"Klondike Kick," the Girls' League Sock Hop in March, was a successful evening at the end of Bow Week, another charitable project. Along with the Mother-Daughter Banquet, the Sock Hop was the climax of the year's activities.

Among the largest of the career-planning extracurricular organizations at West, the FBLA aided students in developing the competent leadership necessary for success in today's business world and the business world of the future.

Affiliated with the state and national organization of Future Business Leaders of America, the club, under the sponsorship of Mr. John Wadsworth, chairman of the commercial department, held monthly meetings at which guest speakers and talented members gave presentations concerning work in the business field.

Several selected members attended high school business conventions during the year, at which they obtained much valuable information on business practices.

National Honor Society Membership

Sixty-eight proud seniors became charter members of Proviso West's National Honor Society on October 13. From a list of the upper twenty-five percent of the senior class, the faculty selected NHS members on the basis of character, service, and leadership.

Representing desirable characteristics of the ideal student, six members of the Proviso East chapter formally inducted the new members. After the banquet in the West cafeteria, initiates and parents heard Herbert J. Taylor, past-president of Rotary International, expound the values of "The Four-Way Test." In evaluating the things we think, say, or do, according to this creed, we must ask four questions: Is it the truth? Is it fair to all concerned? Will it build good will? Will it be beneficial to all concerned?

As an honorary society, the National Honor Society does not carry on a specific program or hold regular meetings.

1961 Mural Staff Proudly Presents First Edition

Under the supervision of Mrs. Carol DeRuiter, members of the 1961 Mural staff worked long and hard to produce Proviso West's first yearbook. It was a familiar sight to see lights burning in D-112 hours after the rest of the building had been vacated. Actual work began in September following editorial board assignments.

Editor-in-chief Diane Bolton gained much experience by attending the High School Journalism Institute at Indiana University. Utilizing her knowledge, she instructed her co-workers in the fine points of yearbook make-up. The editors and their staffs occupied themselves writing copy, captions, and headlines, cropping pictures, and proofing galleys. They also arranged class, organization, and faculty photographs and designed the Mural cover.

Business staff members found that keeping accurate records of orders and payments of books, covers, and engraved names consumed a great deal of time. In addition, the business manager and her assistants planned the Mural's first annual potluck dinner with the Profile staff and the get-acquainted coke party for prospective yearbook workers.

After the April 14 deadline, staff members and advisor expectantly awaited the delivery of West's first yearbook.

Over the din of clattering typewriters, reporters' voices, and slamming file drawers boomed the voice of Profile editor-in-chief Mollie Auten, demanding copy, assigning stories, and suggesting corrections.

Working during the seventh period and after school, the staff endeavored to record the multifarious activities of a huge school. For twenty-eight editions during the 1960-61 school year, the staff, under Mr. Arthur Levin's direction, met deadlines, read copy, and checked galleys.

The twelve-page National Elections and twelve and twenty-four page Christmas issues displayed clearly the outstanding journalistic initiative which won the Profile an All-American rating from National Scholastic Press Association.

As rewards or supplementary training, editors and reporters attended the Illinois State High School Press Association Convention, the NSPA Convention, and the Chicago Scholastic Press Guild Conference. The Christmas party and annual pot luck supper highlighted a hectic season.

The appointment of a new editorial board climaxed the pot luck. Under experienced supervision, this eager group printed the final issue to culminate the Profile's year.

West Debaters Make Television Appearances

Members of Proviso West's debate and forensic teams held firmly to their title of "farthest-traveled organization" by journeying to tournaments throughout the state of Illinois.

After attending several practice tournaments early in the year, debaters started the official season in January, debating the proposition, "Resolved: That the United Nations Should Be Significantly Strengthened." They were awarded second place at Navy Pier, and first place at Northwestern. At the Augustana College tournament, West verbally battled with Pekin in a series of ties for first, finally being awarded second place on the basis of one less speaker point. An interesting highlight of the season was West's participation in the televised debate program "Rebuttal."

Forensic members placed first in the speech tournament at Proviso West and caused Thornton Fractional's second defeat in 22 years by winning first place at the Thornton Fractional Tournament. Mr. Paul Johnson, debate and forensics, and Mr. Douglas Poulter, forensics, coached the teams.

Separate Tables,

The 1960-61 theatre season at Proviso West was climaxed in May by a brilliant performance of John Patrick's Teahouse of the August Moon. Faithfully reproducing Okinawan dialect, the kimono-clad geisha girls and burly American GI's drew an enthusiastic response from five audiences.

Director Mr. Douglas Poulter selected Separate Tables as the contest play. Presented at the district National Forensic League tournament held at Proviso West, the nine-member cast placed first among nine competing schools.

In November the dramatics group combined their talents with the music department in the staging of Oklahoma! Overflow audiences in the Proviso East auditorium heralded the success of the school's first musical.

Dennis Fargue appears as Sakinī, the interpreter, to welcome honorable audience to Teahouse of the August Moon.

Library Pages Aid in Travel Club's Research

Embracing the spirit of the open road, the members of Proviso West's Travel Club, through the aid of slides, films, and illustrated lectures, made monthly armchair visits to famous places in the United States and Europe.

The year's activities began with the annual membership tea at which former members and their advisor, Mrs. Martha Wilson, welcomed new members. Later in the year, the Travel Club merged for a day with the FTA to hear Mr. Raymond DenAdel's account of his trip to Rome in the summer of 1960. At the Christmas party, members joined in wishing each other "Joyeux Noel" and "Feliz Navidad" while observing Christmas customs of foreign lands.

Amid the magazines, novels, and reference books roams the library page by whose hands thousands of books and magazines are checked out, mended, and shelved. Under the guidance of Miss Mary Gillham and Miss Alice Gustafson, he learns the operation of the library.

Each semester the librarians invite students with a 3.0 grade average to join the library staff. The staff of 46 members serves the student body and faculty of Proviso West, keeps the library facilities in excellent condition, and decorates the library at Christmas. At the annual spring banquet, pages who have served in the library 150 hours and graduating seniors receive honors for commendable service.

Future Nurses, Teachers Host Career Speakers

Under the direction of the school nurses, Miss Dolores Garramone and Miss Myrtle Gould, the Future Nurses of America spent a busy year. The girls combined efforts to further their knowledge of opportunities available in various phases of the medical field. In a lighter vein, the FNA met for recreational activities, highlighted by a Christmas party and a spring fashion show.

Dancers, Lensmen Heed Command to "Focus!"

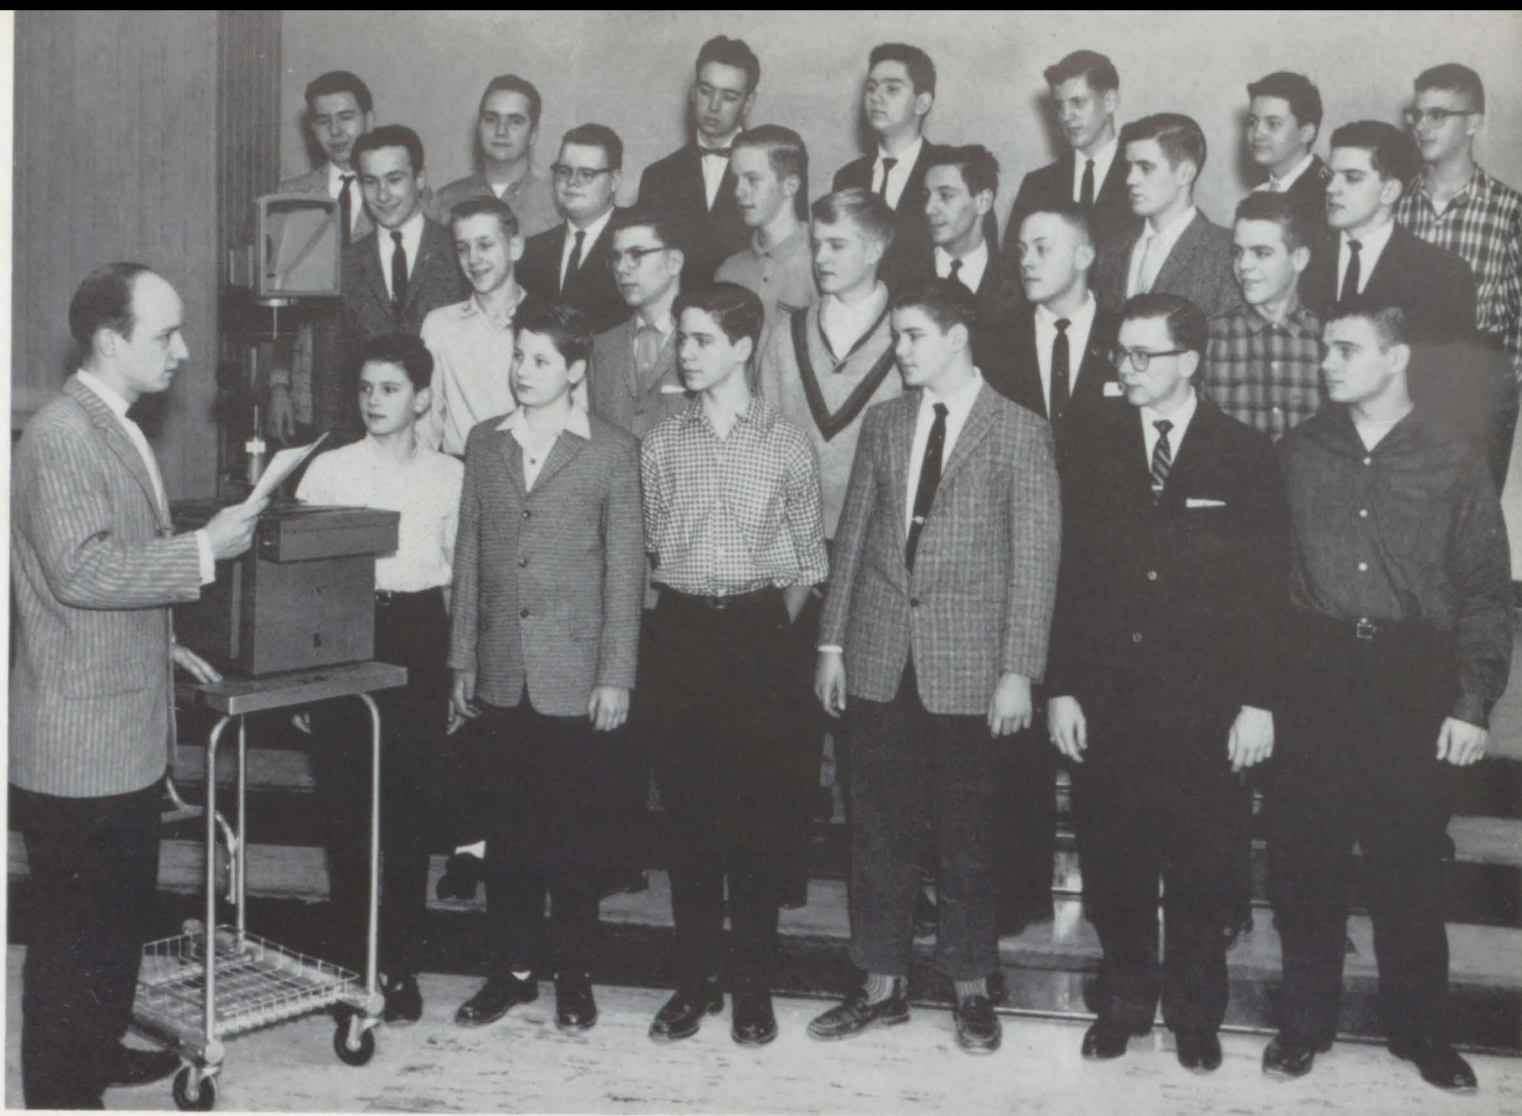

Under the co-sponsorship of Mr. Frans Guepin and Mr. John Sanborn, the members of the Proviso West Camera Club spent the year learning and applying the skills necessary to gain expressive, clear photographs. Every Wednesday the ten members used their after-school meetings as a workshop to prepare for competition with other lensmen. One such contest took place at the end of April, when each boy applied his knowledge of photography to picturing. Helping to record in pictures sports and social events highlighted the club's first year.

Formed at the end of the 1959-60 school year, the Orchesis Dance Club, deriving its name from the Greek word meaning "to dance," this year became fully established as a school organization. Meeting on Tuesdays and Thursdays after school, the group worked in conjunction with the Girls' Physical Education Choreography Class. Directed by Mrs. Mildred Katz, the two groups combined to present the spring dance show, "Moods in Motion." The choreography class alone performed in the Oklahoma! production and the "Gymnastics Extravaganza."

Cine Club Heads Visual Aid Program

As a typical Provisoite saw a Cine boy struggling through the crowded halls pushing a projector, showing movies on the metamorphosis of a mayfly and similar exciting subjects, or repairing an ancient, brittle film, he obtained a firsthand view of the varied talents required of Cine Club members.

The club's sponsor, Mr. Henry Walli, instructed new members in such audio-visual skills as the right way to operate a tape recorder or focus a film. As a member received his Cine letter, the result of many hours of dedicated work, he quickly forgot the little embarrassing incidents such as showing a movie to the wrong class or rewinding a film backwards. Working together, Cine Club members strove to improve Proviso West's audio-visual department as well as to increase their own knowledge of modern audio-visual teaching aids.

Cine Club Officers, President Ed Purcell, Treasurer Dennis Forgue, Vice-president Dennis Neuhauser, and Secretary Phil Smith, confer with their advisor, Mr. Henry Walli, about the day's schedule.

Scientists, Chessmen Improve Concentration

Proviso West "Scientists of Tomorrow" labored throughout the school year to develop science projects and learn more about the varied aspects of science. A member of the Junior Academy of Science, the club afforded an opportunity to increase knowledge in both biological and physical sciences. Highlighting the year's activities was the PTA Science Fair at which members publicly displayed various science projects. The organization, under the co-sponsorship of Mr. John Slimmer and Mr. William Haas, met monthly.

Applying the strategy and tactics of the playing field in the playing of games, Chess and Checker Club members met Tuesdays after school. The group, sponsored by Mr. Richard Becker, devoted its third year of existence to the promotion of interest in these two ancient games by helping students develop the complex skills needed in technique mastery. Individual members donated the game equipment. Hopes existed late in the year that the club would find competition in a new group being formed at Proviso East.

Radio, Machine Shop Clubs Stress Accuracy

Dedicated to the development of skills associated with the machine tool industry, machine shop students commuted to Proviso East each day to share available facilities. In order to provide training in the use of basic machine tools, the boys constructed projects demanding a variety of operations. Through their extra-curricular activity the Machine Shop Club gained much technical knowledge useful to life after high school graduation.

The members of West's Radio Club obtained practical knowledge with various kinds of radio and electronic equipment this year. In its first year, the Radio Club brought together students interested in learning technical skills concerned with work in the field of radio and related fields. Meetings were spent in discussion as well as in practical experimentation. Dr. Darwin Appleton, chairman of the science department, sponsored the group.

Forty seafaring maidens from Proviso West plunged weekly into the cool, refreshing water of the swimming pool to hold a "meeting" of the Synchronized Swim Club.

Coached by Mrs. Nancy Kort, the girls worked many long, hard hours to prepare the spring water show. These swimmers also participated in the PTA International Frolics at the spring PTA meeting.

Another organization designed to promote interest and participation in water sports is the Aquatic Staff. The staff's services included life guarding for physical education classes, fun nights, and Saturday swimming classes. Qualified members aided in the instruction of the swim classes open to the township's adults and grade school children.

The staff met monthly during XO periods and on Saturdays with their coach Mr. Walter Cryer.

Both the Aquatic Staff and the Synchronized Swim Club afforded students with an opportunity to develop skills and interest in aquatic activities.

Freshman Girls' Chorus Develops Vocal Skills

One hundred twenty-five freshmen girls comprised the two sections of the Freshmen Girls' Chorus. Gaining their initial experience in high school choral work, the girls were divided into two groups, one meeting on Monday, Wednesday, and Friday, the other meeting on Tuesday and Thursday.

Under the direction of Mr. Irwin Bell, the groups united to participate in the annual Christmas choral concert and the spring choral concert. Those girls showing adequate ability were selected for membership in the Advanced Girls' Chorus and Choir.

Boys Harmonize in Spirituals, Show Tunes

Adding masculine tones to Proviso's choral organization, the Boys' Chorus demonstrated their singing skill at their performances in the Christmas and spring choral concerts. The 54-member chorus met three days a week during the school year under the direction of Mr. Irwin Bell. This experience enabled the boys to learn the basic principles of choral singing.

Selections which the chorus presented this year included a medley of South Pacific numbers, "Roll, Jordan, Roll," and the spiritual "Climbin' up the Mountain, Children."

Spring Concert Features Mozart, Bach, Beethoven

The Proviso West Orchestra, composed of the string orchestra and the brass and woodwind sections of the band, has grown to its present size and capability during the last three years. With a few beginning string instrumentalists as a nucleus in Proviso West's first year, Miss Donna Zimmerman built a group which presented a concert in May.

The entire orchestra played Mozart's "Fantasie," the theme from Beethoven's Second Symphony, and Carol Velska's "Roumanian Fantasy." The string section presented Siciliana and Allegro by Avison. Several ensembles played, with Miss Zimmerman and Sharon Wilson performing Concerto for Two Violins by Bach.

Nutcracker Suite Thrills Choir Audiences

Proudly assuming the role of the top-rank choral organization at West, the choir spent an especially busy year. Feverishly working with the music, dramatic, and dance departments to help present the all-school production Okla-homa! choir members contributed much to the success of the show which was presented in early November. A week later, the 95-member group hustled off to give a performance before the 50th Anniversary Convention of the National Council of Teachers of English, held at the Palmer House in Chicago. The choir was honored by being chosen from many high school choirs throughout the country to perform at this convention.

Back home, the singers entertained appreciative audiences at the annual Christmas choral concert and the spring choral concert. The entire West student body had the opportunity to hear the choir sing at the all-school Christmas assembly, where, directed by Mr. Irwin Bell, the choir sang a variety of Christmas numbers.

The year's activities drew to a grand close as the choir and band merged to give a June evening concert in the outdoor theatre.

Mr. Carroll Simmons, director, wields a respected baton at West band performances.

"Stepping high to the rhythm," the Proviso West band, under the direction of Mr. Carroll Simmons, served to present the musical side of Proviso life by providing many melodious maneuvers at football games and playing for basketball games.

Designed to provide an experience in musical expression for talented instrumentalists, the band gave West students opportunities to learn music appreciation. The year's activities started off with the annual potluck dinner held on Saturday, October 22, at which the band officers were introduced. As entertainment for the evening, band members performed several selections and viewed slides of the National Music Camp at Interlochen, Michigan. On October 29, the 73 thrilled students had the honor of playing for Vice-president Richard Nixon upon his arrival at Hillside Shopping Center to promote his presidential campaign.

In December, members contributed to the Christmas spirit by playing Christmas carols in the commons during the lunch periods. At their annual concerts in January and April, band performers entertained audiences with rousing group melodies and solo instrumentals, and at the joint band-choral concert under the stars, held in the mall in June, performers literally "filled the air with music."

Members of the trumpet quartet, Joanne Wright, Joseph Antonelli, Harold Kreutzer, and Ron Predl, grandly perform a fanfare.

Adding formality and grace to Proviso West, the Color Guard and Majorettes spent a busy year performing at many functions. Both groups, sponsored by the music department, gave much service to the school. In addition to performing at band appearances, the Majorettes also participated in the program of the Gymnastic Extravaganza held in March. The Color Guard served by presenting the flag at various formal occasions throughout the school year.

John Scala, Kurtis Butler, Bob Erickson, and Ken Jandes, Proviso West's official color guard, snap smartly to attention.

Ho-Toi Reigns in Sakura Garden at "Tokaido"

Being called "upperclassmen" at last but still looking forward to next year,
 Enduring the odious results of a wayward chemistry reaction,
 Thoughtfully engaged in the plotting of quadratic functions,
 Planning and working to make "Tokaido" a successful Oriental evening,
 Admiring the "vocal skill" of pianist David Burk at the class assembly,
 Being torn between Nationalism and Sectionalism as possible answers on a multiple choice exam,
 Gathering spontaneously after school and chattering with friends,
 Gloating over "The Tell-Tale Heart," while still shivering from "The Pit and the Pendulum," Mastering the eccentricities of the history term paper,
 Memorizing a long speech, discovering ways of the stage, recognizing the difference between Chekhov and de Maupassant,
 Proudly sporting blue bows and ribbons on Bow Day,
 Choosing among ruby, pearl, gold, silver, or onyx class rings,
 Curiously viewing their "exclusive portraits" while signing copies of the Mural,
 With the "long haul" behind him, and the best yet to come,
 The JUNIOR looks ahead.

Junior Representatives Schedule March Coke Party

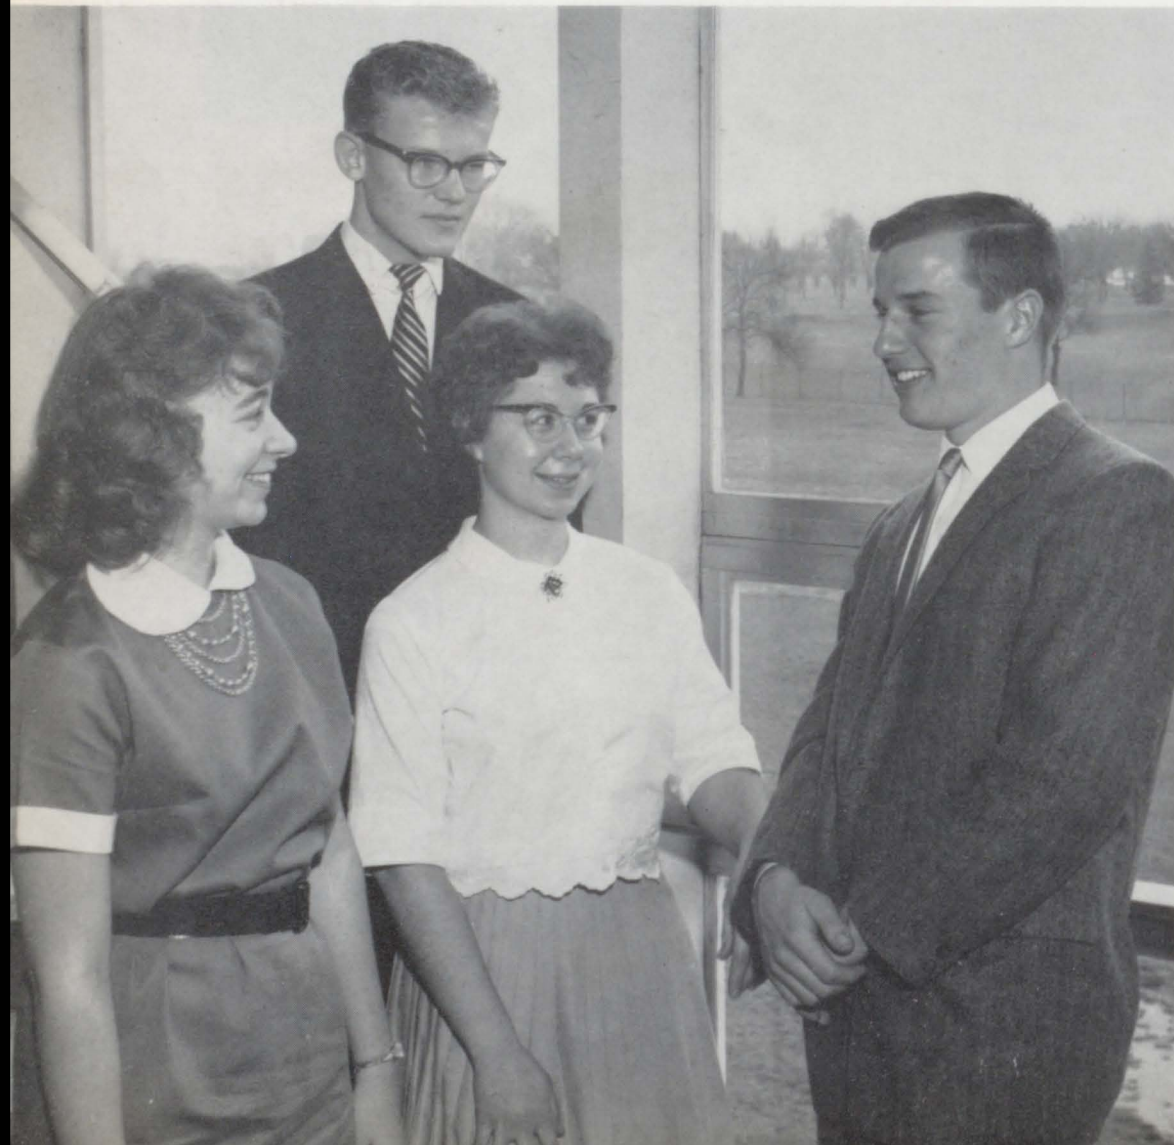

Master of Ceremonies Fred Radewagan presents George Crabtree with the silver coke bottle for being the boy least likely to be seen dancing.

Sophomores Meet Silas Marner, Julius Caesar

Hearing "the little freshman" taunts no longer,
Fending off bony elbows and lethal-toed slippers in the halls,
Confusing Pythagoras with Euclid, Cassius with Casca, Pasteur with Curie, but eventually untangling them,
Cheering their teams as they splash, bounce, or slide in for a score,
Making their teeth-chattering way across the mall on a winter day,
Attending their class assembly, "Water World," in December,
Getting unceremoniously shoved, pushed, jostled, and finally caught, descending an "up" stairway,
Strutting about in best suit and tie or earrings and heels trying to see all, and to be seen on Dress Up Day,
Whirling at the Paris-inspired dance,
Inhaling the acrid odor of formaldehyde emanating from a mutilated dissection specimen,
Anticipating the end of Dunstan Cass,
Deciding between taxidermy and taxi-driving on the Kuder Vocational Test,
Crunching candy, snapping firesticks, cracking pretzels and taking class notes during a movie,
Finally resigned to long waits in the lunch lines,
The SOPHOMORE reached the half-way mark.

Freshmen Discover Red Books, Library Slips

Freshman Officers, Vice-president Donald Lynch, President Nancy Currier, Treasurer Judy Jones, and Secretary Nina Leonardi, became the first leaders of their class.

Feeling the queasy excitement of Freshman Day,
Mastering the confusion of "up" stairs and odd-numbered rooms,
Adjusting to the rigors of algebraic equations, false fire drills, "pop" quizzes, and unbending teachers,
Solving the puzzle of where to put what in the right place on a library slip while being scrutinized by a waiting page,
Learning the route to a pep assembly by listening to the directions over the public address,
Deciding what to do on Fun Nights,
Seeing those first nine weeks grades and wondering how it all happened and why,
Electing first class officers in December,
Trying out for chorus or band under the haughty gaze of a dozen wise upperclassmen,
Breathing the thick, chlorinated air in the pool area,
Stampeding ravenously to the cafeteria,
Chanting "La Cucuaracha" to the rhythm of castanets, enthusiastically led by Senorita Scala and the record player,
Adapted to Proviso's eccentricities,
The FRESHMAN found his place in a new school.

Varsity Gridders Cop Second Place

Competing for the first time as a four year high school, Proviso's Panthers compiled a successful record of 6 wins and 2 losses. The first game at Elgin was a costly victory. The Panthers lost the services of speedy Terry Doerzaph. After succumbing to the conference champs from Prospect, the gridders rolled up victories over Maine West, North Chicago, East Leyden, and Wheaton. At Glenbrook Coach Maechtle's boys piled up a 20 to 7 lead which slowly dwindled until a 70 yard pass play in the final minutes gave Glenbrook the victory. The Panthers ended the season by beating Willowbrook on a pair of long punt returns, 14-6. To top off the season, the Panthers placed five men on the 1960 All-League team: Dale Colosky, Gerald Mastro, Bill Soo, Logan Dugaw, and Wolfgang Meister.

Soph and J.V. Gridders Eye Future

Although the J.V. football team didn't fare so well this season, it showed promise of tremendous improvement on the gridiron for next year.

The team lacked a balanced attack because many of its better juniors played on the varsity level for the entire season.

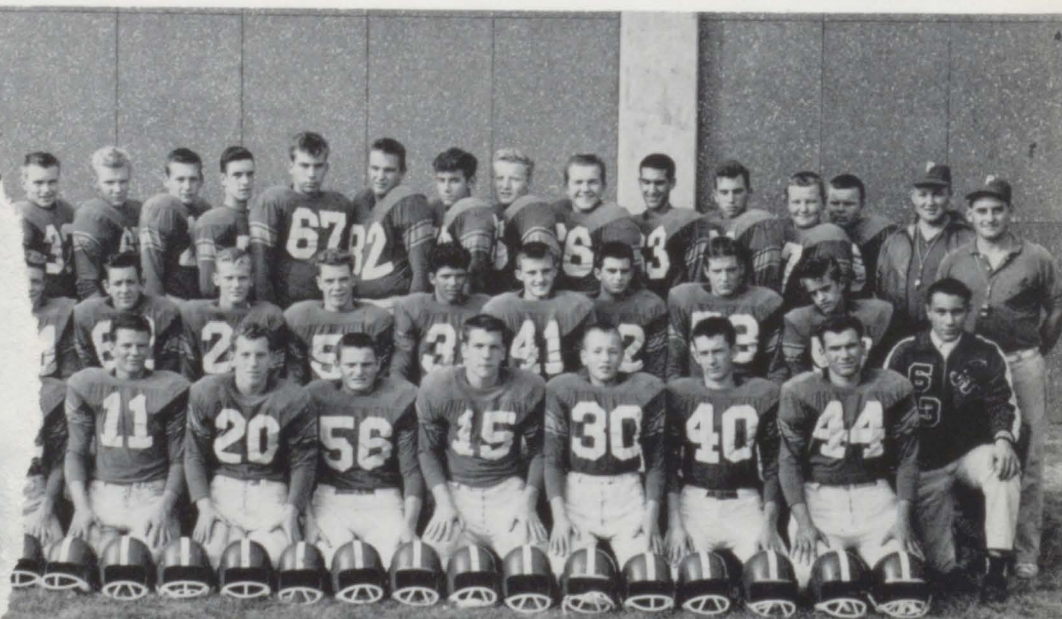

Noel Julian, Larry Lobrillo, Ron Schimdt, and Tony

D'Anza led the squad on offense and defense.

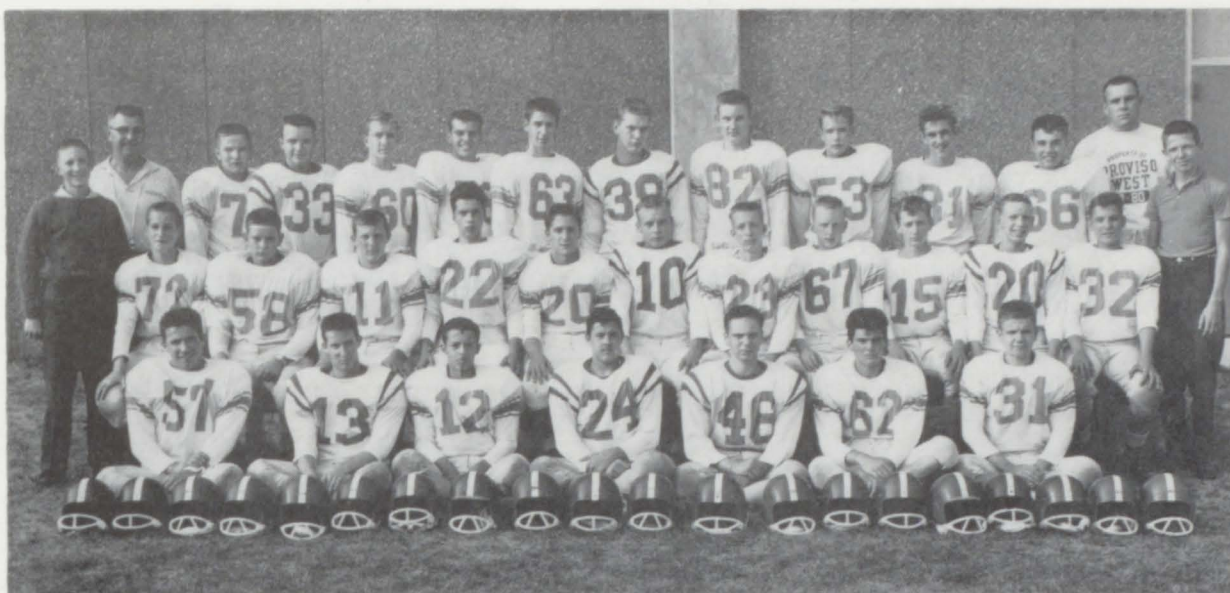

Mr. Wede's soph gridders completed the season with an overall record of 5 wins, 2 losses, and 1 tie, racking up 137 points while holding their opponents to 50. Sparked by Don Dressander, the Cats compiled a 4-1 record in interconference competition which placed them second in the Interim Association.

Barney Peterson qualified for the State meet by running 5th in the district. At Champaign, Barney placed 28th in the field of over 150.

Under Coach Corzatt's leadership, the freshman and sophomore harriers went undefeated for the third straight year in dual competition. Led by Charlie Bertoncini, the Panthers racked up 10 victories.

In the Conference Meet the bunny-chasers slipped to sixth place, giving them a final standing of fourth place in the Interim League.

Extravaganza Features East and West Gymnasts

Panther Terry Grimes completes a flank on his specialty, the side-horse.

The Varsity gymnastics squad, coached by Mr. Jeff Austin, enjoyed its most successful season of competition this year. The Panthers compiled an overall 6 and 5 record and placed third in the Interim League. Paced by Bill Silhan, Terry Grimes, George Hallberg, Allan Stutz, and Carl DelBonono, West's gymnasts placed fifteenth in the State meet held at New Trier. Silhan captured eighth place in the State Meet for the all-around events.

The sophomore gymnastics team placed third in the Interim League, led by Carl Halleck and Mike Jacki. At the freshman invitational meet at West Leyden, the Panthers took a fourth award on the rings and a second in tumbling by John Fish and Mike Jacki, respectively.

Highlighting the gymnasts' season was the first annual Extravaganza which combined Proviso East and West talents. The show included comedy acts, girls' modern dance sequences, majorettes, and an excellent display of various apparatus skills. Receiving enthusiastic comments about the presentation, the sport's department has decided that it will be a yearly event.

John Streit, Gerry Mastro, and Bill Harrison qualified for the sectional matches. Of the trio only Harrison survived for the State Meet at Urbana. Bill missed qualifying for the finals by one point.

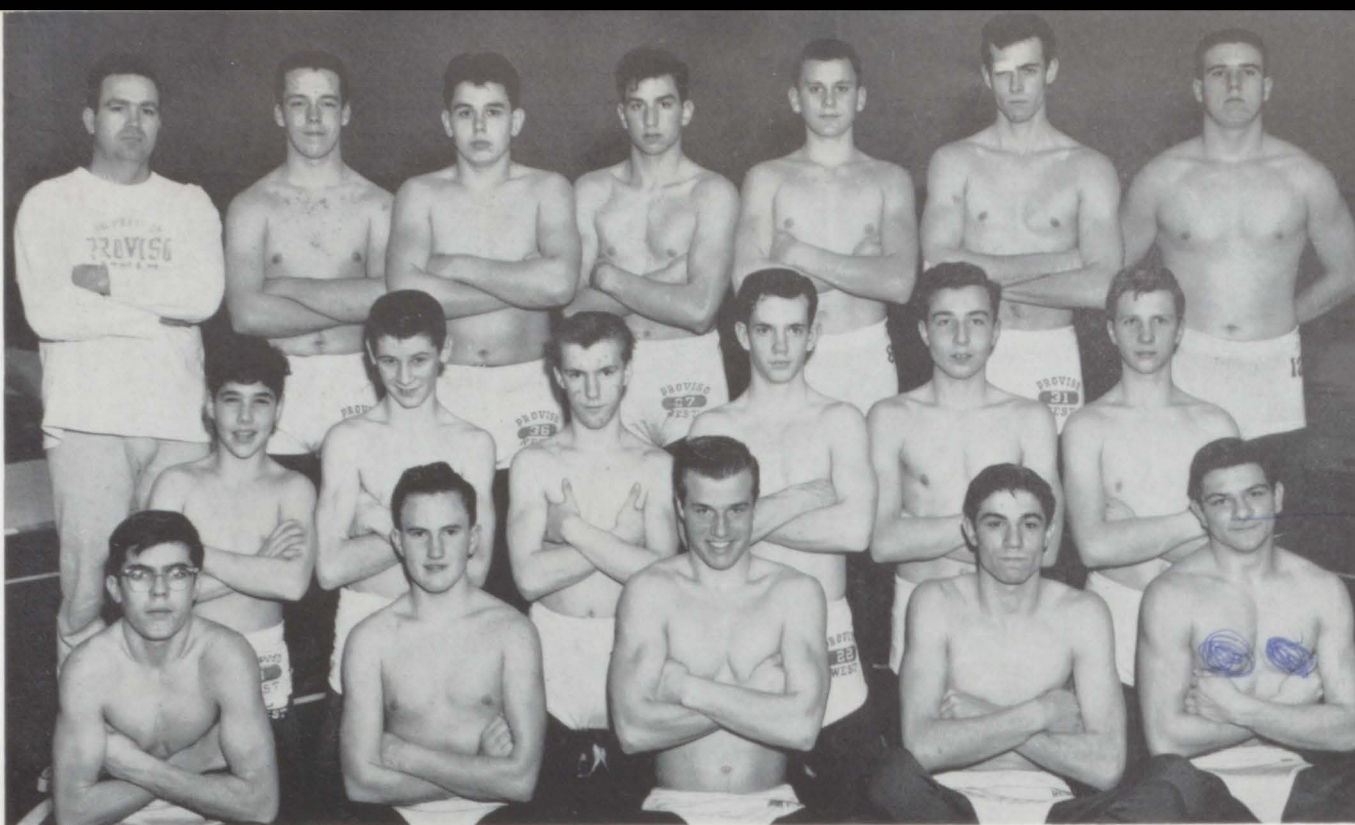

Under Coach Richard Gusloff's supervision, the sophomore grapplers took third place in the conference. At the big Waukegan Invitational six matmen placed in their weight divisions. Al Lipper pinned his three opponents to easily win the 145 pound weight class. Jim Mentz and Stewart Haire took seconds, Dave Poteet and Jim Wittersheim, thirds, and Hal Sittler, a fourth in their respective divisions. Al Lipper set a school record by winning 18 of 20 matches. ## Sophomore Cagers Place Fifth in Conference

The Varsity Panther cagers ended their season with a good showing. In the state tournament the quintet put up a rough battle against Notre Dame of Niles. Although winning only 4 of their 19 contests, the team showed some bright spots for next year.

Three junior boys made the varsity squad: Logan Dugaw, Wayne Erdmann, and Ed Silkaitis. Forward Dick Murphy was the lone Panther to be chosen for the Interim Association team.

Two Panther victories occurring on successive dates against Willowbrook and Glenbrook allowed the cagers to eke out a sixth place finish in the Interim League.

The Junior Varsity won only one game while losing 17. Placing fifth in the conference, Coach Walter Sawosko's sophomore cagers won 8 games and lost 8. The squad missed the services of guard Don Dressander, who suffered a fractured scapula, and Bill Watters, 6 foot 5 inch center who played on the junior varsity team.

Panther Swimmers Take League Crowns in

The Proviso West varsity swimmers, after a dismal season last year, romped to the Interim League title this year. Panther mermen won 6 of 8 league meets and stroked to victory in the conference meet. Under Coach Walter Cryer, the varsity men placed second to Evanston in the district contest held at Evanston. Three individuals and the free-style relay team qualified for the state finals at Urbana, but none placed. The varsity mermen hit their peak against West Leyden when they copped ten of ten first slots and scored 65 points. By the end of the season the varsity swimmers had broken all school records in every event except diving. Next year's squad will be paced by 16 returning lettermen.

Sophomore swimmers displayed their prowess by winning the Interim League crown. The Panthers won all eight dual conflicts and captured first place in the team conference meeting.

Proviso's freshman swimmers are going in the right direction if they want to fill the gap left by this year's sophomore team. The Panthers competed against 24 schools this season and failed to tie or beat only two of them. These two were New Trier and Hinsdale. In six dual contests the mermen won four and lost two. They fared better in the larger, individual meets. At Hinsdale, the Panthers tied for fourth out of nine schools. Later in the year the boys outscored seventeen teams as they tied for second in the Glenbrook Invitational.

Netmen Improve in Second Varsity Season

Returning with last year's all-junior squad, Mr. John Wadsworth had good reason to be optimistic about the outcome of the 12-meet Interim League Tennis Schedule.

The netmen started their season on April 14 against York. The smooth-working doubles team of George Stendell and Dan Koeritz, and singles men Paul Harshbarger and Dave Bangert displayed the willingness and ability to make a bid for the Interim League championship.

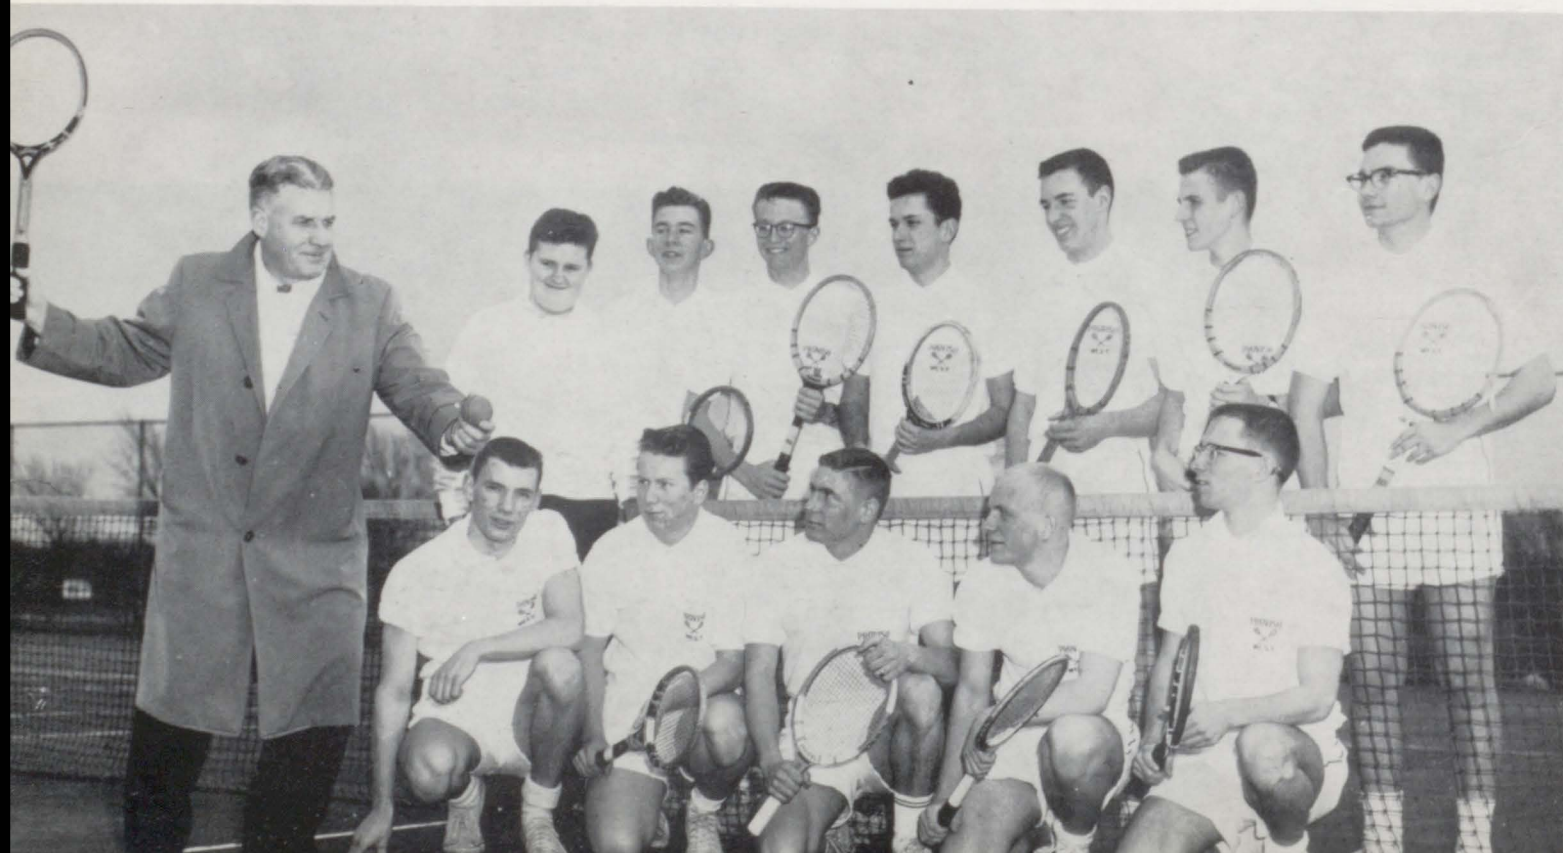

The frosh-soph squad coached by Mr. Walter Cryer, gave indication of a strong varsity squad for the near future, by beating Morton 5-0 after losing to York 3-2.

Varsity Nine Gains Berth in State Tourney

The Panther diamondmen rolled to victories in the first three contests of their thirteen-game schedule. After beating Hinsdale by a score of 5 to 2, the Cats whipped Fenton 3 to 0 and Wheaton 9 to 3. Mr. Joe Wrobke believed the team to be one of Proviso's best for years to come. His reasoning was backed up by four all-conference players who returned this year. They are Tony Niketopoulos, Bill Soo, Logan Dugaw, and Harold Stott. These boys, in turn, are bolstered by last season's conference champion sophomores.

Preceding the outdoor season, the Panthers competed in 10 indoor contests. Despite inadequate facilities for practice, the thinclads managed to win 3 of 5 dual meets. At the "Big Ten" meet, the Panthers captured sixth place by scoring 16 points. Of the 34 schools which competed in the Naperville Relays, Proviso took fourth place. Jerry Beatty won third place trophies in the high jump and the high hurdles. Bill Silhan tied for third in the pole vault while the medley relay team of Gary Anderson, Russ McSwain, Mike Asaro, and Barney Petersen placed third. The twenty-lap relay team ran fifth to complete the Cats' scoring. The cindermen opened the outdoor season with a win in a triangular contest against Immaculate Conception and Fenton.

The sophomore track squad displayed its high caliber in both the indoor and outdoor seasons. John Ullinskey, Les Mosher, Tom Hebda, Rich Wesolek, and Charlie Bertoncini stood out as the team's top performers.

Coached by Mr. William Heald, the ten-man varsity golf squad tried to improve upon last season's record. Under the new total stroke rule, the golfers anticipated a successful year since the team has depth and a good deal of varsity experience. Mike Heller, Ken Hesterman, Jim Paul, and George Hallberg led the team in their quest for the conference title.

The varsity linkmen began their season by losing to York in a 222 to 215 decision. In their second match they whipped Fenton's Bisons by a 58 stroke margin, as Heller tied his own record with a nine hole stroke total of 36. Bolstered by last year's strong freshmen, the sophomore squad made a bid for a winning season in the 13-match schedule.

Proviso West has organized three clubs to promote sportsmanship throughout the school and to develop a spirit of athletics in all students. These clubs are the Major Lettermen, Minor Lettermen, and Numeralmen. Athletes who have received letters or numerals are members of the club saluting their level of accomplishment, the major lettermen being those men who have attained the highest possible award in high school sports.

The awards are made on the basis of five criteria: attendance, game participation, practice participation, eligibility, coach's rating. Boys receiving awards are honored three times during the year at athletic banquets and assemblies.

The Major and Minor Lettermen held their annual dance in the spring. Advisors for these groups are Mr. Edward Gilbert, Mr. Joseph Hartley, and Mr. Donald Maechtle.

Black Panther Joins Proviso Cheerleaders

Led by Marilyn LeVan and Nancy Pein, the varsity and junior varsity cheerleaders added sparkle and pep to football and basketball games last year. Faithfully backing their teams at home and away, the girls worked hard to promote West's growing school spirit. To insure crowd participation, cheerleaders taught students many new yells at Racket Squad workshops. During frequent pep assemblies planned by the combined squads, the student body met teams and coaches, learned new cheers, and enjoyed skits performed for the purpose of promoting enthusiasm by the girls.

Instructed and sponsored by Miss Jane Prest, Mrs. Jacqueline Pracko, and Mr. Jeff Austin, the girls practiced two afternoons each week to perfect their formations and gymnastic routines. Both squads attended a cheerleading clinic at Proviso East High School and several girls attended summer cheerleading camps.

Varsity cheerleaders conducted a three-week training period for hopeful successors. These aspirants learned cheers and motions and displayed these new skills at spring try-outs.

This year, Proviso West introduced its mascot, the panther. In her black costume, Liz Hillebrand appeared at all pep assemblies and entertained the crowds at varsity games.

Shakeroos, Pennants Color Racket Squad Cheers

Exuberantly waving their shakeroos and chanting, "Go, Panthers, Go!" the Racket Squad proved to be one of West's noisiest and busiest clubs. The official boosters of school spirit, members journeyed by bus to all away football and basketball games where they sat in a bloc and cheered the teams. At home games they also sold pins and shakeroos and took their turn selling concessions at two basketball and one football contest. Continuing their support of Proviso sportsmen, the squad also attended athletic awards assemblies.

Even though they devoted much of their time to boosting other activities, Racket Squadders never neglected their own club duties. The Board — composed of officers and committee chairmen — met every week to plan for future events and decide matters of policy. Other members diligently collected identification numbers at games, and decorated the display case with Racket Squad Mementos.

Girls' Athletic Association Introduces Fencing as

Under the leadership of Miss Marilyn Leonard, sponsor, and Shirley Beccue, president, the Proviso West Girls Athletic Association planned and carried out an active sports and social program. Representatives and officers met monthly during "XO" periods to plan GAA activities.

The "Pizza Mamas," the "Little Nothings," and the "Untouchable Globe Trotters," clashed with other teams on the volleyball courts during the GAA-sponsored senior volleyball contest. This year GAA introduced beginning and advanced fencing into the after-school sports program already including softball, volleyball, golf, swimming, bowling, tumbling, badminton, archery, and tennis.

In the early fall, old and new members gathered at the third annual coke hour, "Fun and Fizz." As a Halloween treat for their classmates, members sold taffy apples in the cafeteria and in December, GAA staged its Christmas party with Santa highlighting the fun-making. To raise additional funds, officers and members donned warm clothing and sold refreshments at two Proviso West games. The installation of new officers occurred at the spring picnic where girls enjoyed hot dogs and soft drinks. For its final project, the GAA hosted the incoming freshmen for their first visit to Proviso West at the annual eighth-grade get-together in May.

The Editor Reflects

"We'll finish this page first thing tomorrow morning," declared the weary Mural staff as they trooped out of a late session in D-112 hours after the rest of the building had been vacated. When the final "first things" were completed, the last envelope was mailed to the printer, and the last "sent" was written in the dummy, everyone breathed a long sigh of relief and collapsed from exhaustion. Although they recalled many hours of trying to write sparkling headlines and exciting copy or identify a face that no one seemed to know, they remembered, too, the staff beatnik party, the coke party for new members, and the Publications' Potluck held on April 19 to announce the new staff positions.

The Mural has tried to draw a complete picture of Proviso West's living mural, the mural which includes every student and activity. Many people have assisted the staff in portraying this panorama. From the 1961 Mural staff goes a special thank you to Mr. Lenny Novak, our photographer from Root Studios who did an excellent job of capturing our ideas with his camera. For his capable service "beyond the call of duty," Mr. Larry Wells of Capitol Engraving and Electrotpe Company certainly merits a gold star. To our printer, Mr. Norman Semmelroth of Record Printing and Advertising Company, we award another much-deserved gold star. Thanks, too, go to Mr. Bill Snell of the S. K. Smith Company for help in interpreting our concept of the mural on the cover. And to Provi advisor, Miss Eleanor Johnson, we send thanks for helping us "get organized."

Another gold star and our very deep appreciation go to Mr. Jack Stanley for his excellent management of the Mural's sales and funds.

The biggest star of all we bestow upon our advisor, Mrs. Carol DeRuiter, in appreciation of her endless suggestions, encouragement, proddings, humor, imagination, and many, many hours of hard work.
