Miss Arlene Moran

Mrs. Faith Rotan

Through the classes of crafts, oils, and art, the average high school student has the opportunity to develop and perfect his artistic talents, whereas the study of commercial art offers practical skills, luring those students who wish to pursue a career in advertising or designing. In addition, the art department offers humanities for students desirous of developing an appreciation for their cultural heritage. This inclusive program provides interested students with the effective background necessary for their future pursuits in art.

Training the prospective business executive has become a serious purpose of the business education department. To educate students in the technique of mastering the hard sale, in the methods of proper office procedure, and in the code of ethics necessary for success in the hard-driving business world, the faculty devotes itself expressly to the needs of the student. Through classes in office practice, typing, and stenography the department prepares the student for participation in the distributive education program. The faculty of this department donates their time to aid those students working in the school store and those participating in business organizations.

The multiple facilities of the counseling department provide the solutions to the majority of problems faced by the students of all classes. In addition, the counselors themselves offer their time and patience to any student having difficulty with either school or personal problems. One major function of the counseling department is to prepare the student for later life by advising him to either go to college or to select a suitable career. Of equal importance is guiding the student towards mental and emotional maturity, making him capable of reaching his own conclusions, and planning his own life. While the instructor is responsible for educating the student through class work, the counselor is responsible for guiding the student through personal and informal discussions.

The English department emphasizes mastery of four basic abilities, including careful and thoughtful reading, clear and accurate communication, attentive listening, and serious and honest thinking. To attain these high standards, the faculty gives attention to the appreciation of literature and the perfection of composition. This two-fold program branches into areas ranging from American and English literature to grammatical construction. The classes devoted to literature attempt to illustrate the influences of great works upon the development of modern society. The grammar and composition courses emphasize the necessity of correct speaking and writing, the only methods of universal communication.

The home economics department stresses the importance of the domestic skills needed to succeed in the career of homemaking. By offering courses designed to allow girls to take part in actual home situations, the faculty provides them with experience as well as knowledge. Food, clothing, home decorating and similar courses teach girls the practices required to run a competent and efficient household, while family living instills principles which may eventually mean the difference between a house and a home.

To promote the development of skilled labor, the industrial arts department program bases its success upon the philosophy that the young men involved learn more by participating in the actual construction of a finished product, than by reading the theories contained in text alone. These students demonstrate their acquired knowledge on such modern equipment as the lathe, printing press, and fuel pump. Whether in woodworking, general shop, or auto theory, on the job training encourages individuality and creativity, rather than merely the absorption of structural ideas. Through this freedom, the student becomes accustomed to a situation similar to that which he may face in his mechanical career.

In this jet age, the world constantly seems to be growing smaller. The people of many countries are being brought together more and more. Not only by speaking the language, but by learning about civilizations of their chosen countries, students, through the influence of the language department, come to realize and appreciate the importance of foreign cultures.

Mathematics trains the mind for clear, accurate, and deductive reasoning. Fully realizing this, the mathematics department stresses complete understanding of the why of ideas, as well as the how and what of mechanical processes. By including such courses as calculus, plane trigonometry, algebra, and geometry, the department demonstrates its eagerness to equip students with the mental powers of logic needed to succeed in any area of study. By employing the discovery method of teaching, the faculty encourages the students to take part in classroom work and to more fully understand the theories and hypothesis of mathematics. The student then feels a greater sense of satisfaction knowing that through his own ingenuity and key prompting by the instructor, he has developed the basic mathematic properties from their origin to their highest degree of complexity.

The daily crowds of students found in the library this past year attested to its importance in the overall educational program. Students and faculty have a wide range of reference and recreational information in this attractive room. Of credit to the department also is the support of a school nursing club. Through this worthwhile organization, the nurses are able to share their knowledge and experiences with prospective nursing students.

musicians entertain at concerts and during half-time

By participating in the production of musical classes, students in the music department gain a fuller and deeper appreciation for the great music of the world. Students active in the band or orchestra work and practice to perfect symphonies and pops for their yearly concerts. Choir and chorus members sing daily to strengthen their voices for their regular performances. This activity supplies students with an excellent and far-reaching background of the cultural art of music, the universal language.

Physical fitness itself is a broad quality involving medical and dental supervision and care, immunization, proper nutrition, adequate rest, relaxation and other practices of healthful living. Exercise is also an essential element for achieving physical fitness. The boys' physical education program contributes toward muscular development, stabilization of personal and social adjustments, growth of self-confidence and the cultivation of emotional responsiveness.

Correspondingly, the girls' program focuses its attention on the individual potentialities of the students. By selecting courses in agreement with physical and mental maturity, needs and interests, the department hopes to create in each person a sense of coordination, grace, and poise.

With the ever increasing stress being placed on the importance of science, the science department has expanded and strengthened its program. For the purpose of cultivating in students an interest for this rapidly changing field, the faculty constantly searches for new information concerning such facts as the increasing number of chemical elements and developments in the cellular structure of the human body. Unlike most other departments, this segment of Proviso faces consistantly changing facts and must stand ready to adopt and support them. For this reason, the department has introduced a senior science seminar for a selected group of advanced students with confessed leanings toward future work in the physical sciences. Expertly trained, the science instructors encourage individual thinking apart from school as well as the group learning practiced in the classroom.

The social studies department seeks to increase the student's knowledge of traditions and governments of different cultures as well as to encourage him to appreciate his own democracy. The faculty strives to stimulate creative thought on the part of the student to form his own concepts and beliefs. Combating the limited horizons of the average high school student, the social studies department teaches worldwide philosophies through well-organized classes in history, psychology, sociology, geography, economics, and government and by providing discussions concerned with current problems and world tension areas.

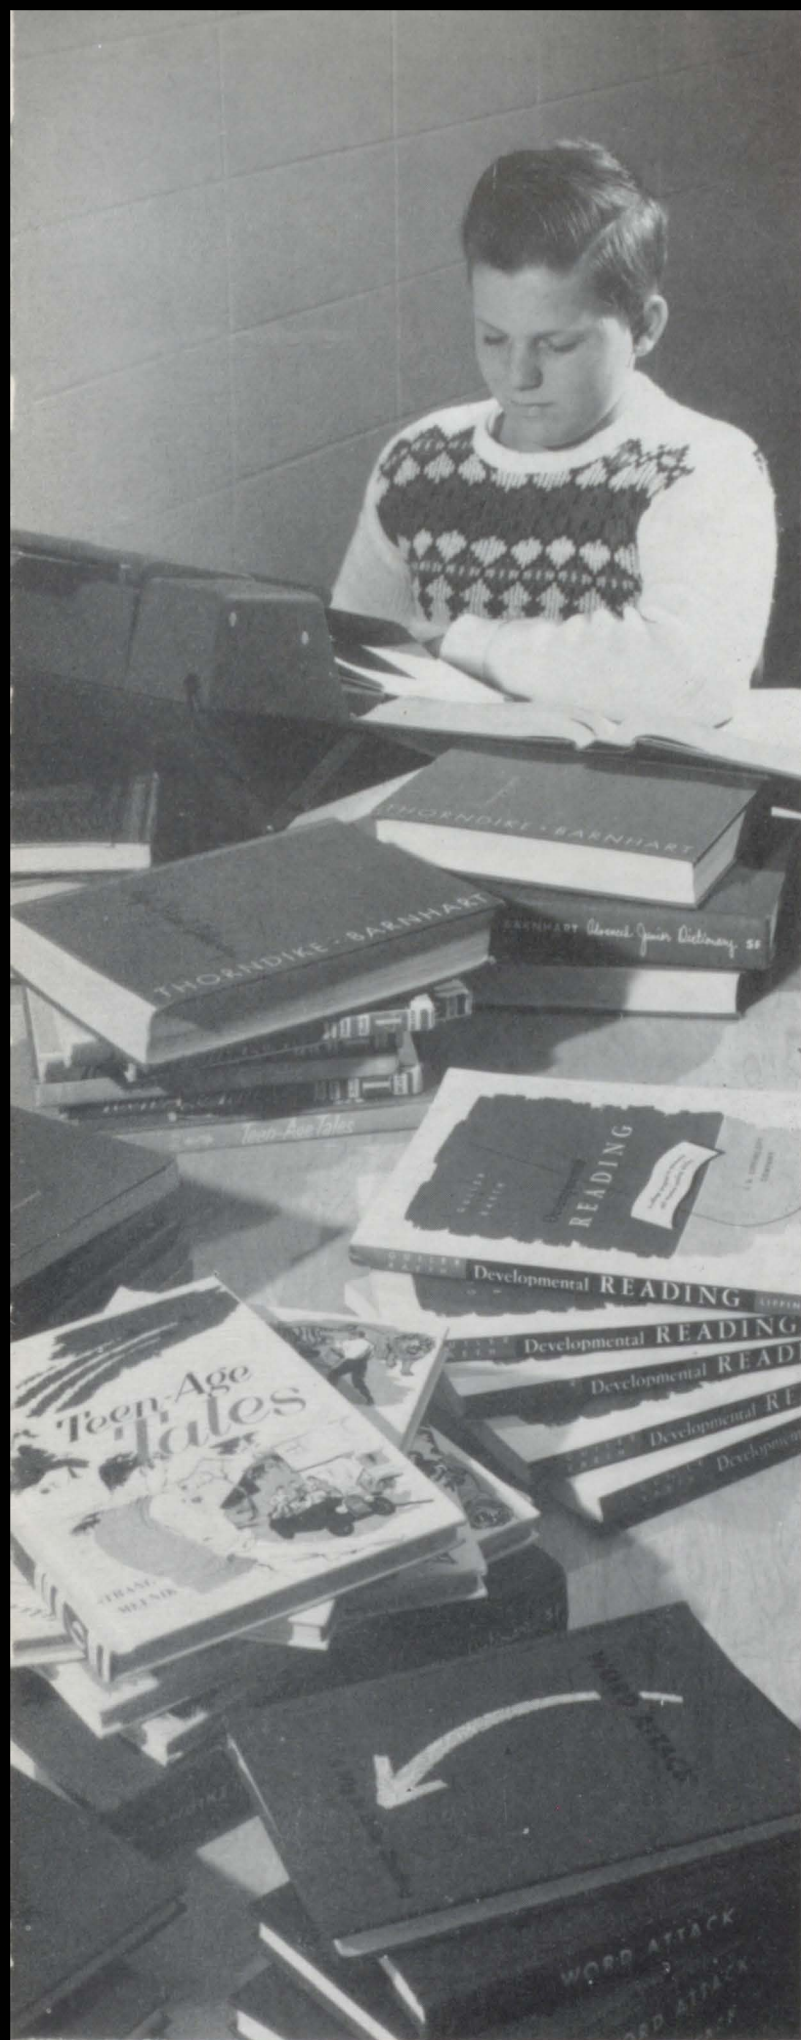

business staff and ibm machines process towering stacks of school records

Handling the clerical duties for a school as large as Proviso involves many complex and detailed procedures. Amid the preparation of the daily bulletin, machine correction of standard department tests, and the mimeographing of circulars, this staff finds time to answer the inquiries of students and the faculty. Without the assistance of the business staff, Proviso's high standards of efficiency could not be preserved.

The reading clinic cordially opens its doors to more effective and comprehensive reading. Attracting both college-bound students eager for more meaningful reading and those students who wish to improve their reading skills, the clinic conducts small classes daily, seeking to enhance the student's vocabulary and understanding of words.

Once the student has reached an understanding and has formulated an idea, he must be able to express this idea to others through forceful and impressive speech. Working in conjunction with the reading clinic, the speech clinic undertakes this responsibility to perfect the diction and enunciation of willing students. Working to overcome hindering physical defects, the speech clinic instructor conducts personal contacts and interviews with students eager for the development of their basic means of response.

Working to uphold the outstanding beauty of Proviso, the men of the maintenance department pride themselves on the striking appearance of the school; similarly, the matrons maintain clean and pleasant facilities. Although at work around the clock, this little recognized department comes into the limelight only in cases of urgent need when students suffer from lack of heat, become trapped in their autos in great depths of snow, or need help in the preparation of dance decorations. However, this department is responsible for the smooth operations the rest of the school takes for granted.

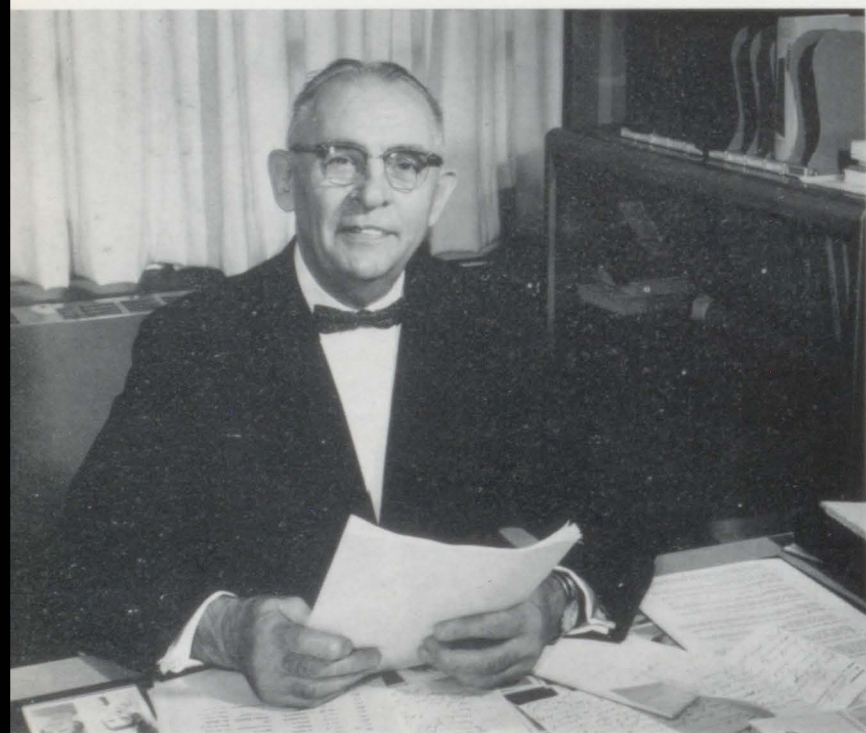

cafeteria staff prepares for noon rush with savory fare

Fully understanding the importance of a nutritious diet, the cafeteria staff plans and prepares the daily meal with two objectives in mind. The most important of these is the nutritional value. The school meal must contain sufficient vitamins to sustain the adolescent who purchases it. Of secondary importance is how well the student will enjoy the meal. Realizing the significance of these two points, the cafeteria staff carefully selects a meal with constitutional value and popular student appeal.

The Student Council again furthered its unique position of being the only organization formed to represent the entire student body. Under the leadership of Mr. Donald Wright, this group pledged themselves to fulfilling the needs and wishes of the students and formulated a schedule for a year filled with enough projects and activities to interest everyone. With the assistance of school wide representatives, the cabinet met every week to plan fun nights, major dances, a variety show, and a Charity Week. Helping also to discover mutual bonds among schools, the Council participated in the Northeast-Northwest Conference of Student Councils and took part in the Interim League hospitality night. Delegates attended such programs to help the Student Council attain its basic goal — the promotion of better citizenship and cooperation within the student body and the rendering of service to the students, the school, and the community.

student leaders aid faculty in supervision of activities

Among other phases of service performed for the school by the Student Council was the role of the student leaders. Several committees have worked throughout the year with the sole purpose of easing the need for faculty supervision. Monitors and their captains helped control traffic in the halls and also aided counselors and office workers in performing clerical duties. The assembly supervisors directed and guided students at assemblies and special programs. Working in still another capacity of student government, qualified students were placed in charge of student supervised study halls, given the powers of a teacher and directed to maintain order and discipline. These and other committees furthered the development of reliable student leadership.

Student Council activities included fun nights, dances, a Charity Week, and, of greatest importance, Proviso West's first Homecoming. Offered through the efforts of the many cabinet committees, fun nights provided a casual atmosphere where students were able to swim, dance, compete in team sports, or relax with friends. The Charity Week was dedicated to community service and helped raise funds for charities chosen by the Council. The success of Proviso West's first Homecoming "Autumn Leaves" resulted through the perseverance of the Council officers and cabinet members.

Girls League members provided varied entertainment for the students of Proviso West in their annual Mop Flop hair styling course, fashion shows, movies, and sock hop. In addition, Girls League sponsored a clothing drive to aid Indians living in the Chicago area. Under the guidance of Miss Barbara Remley, the club's advisor, upperclass members became Big Sisters to freshman girls, helping them with homework and other problems common to first year high school students. Through the Big Sister party, Thanksgiving and Christmas get-togethers, and work meetings, the Girls League program provided a strong basis for school-wide acquaintances and friendships.

mural staff presents story of '62 proviso west in modern

Creating a photo essay to record a year of school life at Proviso West, the Mural staff, under the direction of Mrs. Carol DeRuiter, transformed B-310 into an office during seventh period and after school. The receipt of the National Scholastic Press Association All American award for the 1961 Mural spurred the new staff to work harder for perfection in the current book.

Editors attended the Illinois State High School Press Association Convention at the University of Illinois and the Chicago Scholastic Press Guild Workshop at Proviso East in order to study yearbook production under experienced instructors. The editorial staff attacked the problems of copy, headlines, photograph identification, and fresh layout, while Miss Wilma Buchholz's business staff scheduled photos, sold subscriptions, and managed the finances.

In the brief moments of relaxation, the Mural personnel unwound at their Christmas party, entertained potential staff members at the spring coke party, and awarded Quill and Scroll recognition to superior staff members at their annual final deadline banquet.

profile staff endeavors to maintain the high quality of an all-american publication

To provide the key instrument in the cultivation of student self-expression and in the recognition and promotion of school achievements and activities, the Profile staff works continuously, beginning two weeks preceding the opening of school and continuing until the last days before commencement. With the guidance of their editorial advisor, Mr. Arthur Levin, and their business advisor, Mr. Fred Widicus, they maintain the standard of excellence which has twice earned them the National Scholastic Press Association All American Award and the Quill and Scroll's George H. Gallup and International Honor Award. From the editor-in-chief to the greenest beat reporter, they strive to meet the Friday night deadlines and to fill their inch quotas with fresh news stories.

A willingness to work plus the academic capability to devote time after school are the sole requirements for joining this organization. Meetings, held regularly on Tuesdays and Wednesdays, serve to remind members of the constant need for perfection and to prepare them for such annual projects as the Education, College Week, and Thanksgiving issues and the spectacular twelve-page Christmas edition. Accompanying these routine features are the festive Christmas party and the end of the year pot luck at which outstanding staff members receive recognition.

Staff members comment on the features which made the Profile an award-winning publication.

Proviso West speakers journeyed to Augustana College, Rock Island, Northwestern University, Evanston, University of Illinois, Navy Pier, and Illinois State Normal University, Bloomington, and the district and sectional contests in hopes of advancing to the state and national tournaments.

fta members gain valuable experience and knowledge of the teaching profession

Under the sponsorship of Miss Viola Scala and Mr. Ewing Small, the Future Teachers of America met each month to organize programs and projects which would be helpful to those students interested in a teaching profession. By attending regional and state conventions, the officers gained valuable instruction to further aid them in planning activities. In September the FTA sponsored a party to acquaint new students with the club's objectives and ideals. In later months, members enjoyed hearing guest speakers and seeing informative films on teaching opportunities. Such a carefully planned schedule helped advance FTA's purpose — to encourage outstanding young men and women to enter the teaching profession.

The Future Business Leaders of America, under the leadership of Mr. John Wadsworth, Mrs. Joan Diedrich, Mr. Dewey Adair, and Miss Theresa Lovasich, met monthly to train and develop interested students into competent and successful business men and women. The responsibility for the operation of the school store provided the main purpose for this organization and gave members the opportunity to gain experience in the retailing field. FBLA delegates attended the annual convention at Springfield and a state conference at DeKalb in order to further their personal advancement as well as to benefit the organization. These combined efforts of local and state FBLA chapters gave Proviso's 104 members a solid foundation for later advancement in the field of business.

This year the Astronomy Club enjoyed its first year as a chartered organization at West. Its formation demonstrated not only the growing interest in science but the curiosity of students concerning specific areas in related fields of science. With the aid of Mr. Richard Becker as their advisor, the group met each week to compare progress of projects ranging from the plotting of constellation movements to the actual construction of small telescopes. In addition, members worked as a group to study planet rotation, star formations and the possible appearance of meteors or comets.

lettermen work to improve fellowship, sportsmanship

Formed to provide a social organization for Proviso athletes, the letter and numeral groups sponsored several activities throughout the year. Those candidates who had earned a letter or numeral, ranked high in their class scholastically, and presented sufficient teacher recommendations were selected as members. The select group of major lettermen promoted the annual junior-senior basketball game and the lettermen dance, while the combined efforts of the minor lettermen and numeralmen planned the varsity-faculty basketball game. The primary purpose of these groups, however, was to promote good sportsmanship, competitive spirit, and school loyalty.

Devoted to boosting school spirit, the cheerleading squad perfected new cheers to use throughout the year. Each girl interested in becoming a cheerleader had to maintain a 3.0 average and meet other requirements formulated by Miss Jane Prest, Miss Jeanne Stegen, and Miss Jacqueline Pracko. After attending summer workshops and practicing two nights weekly, the cheerleaders presented new cheers at pep assemblies and PTA demonstrations. Both the varsity and junior varsity squads helped rally student enthusiasm at football and basketball games and boost interest in other athletic events.

The Girls Athletic Association endeavored throughout the year to expand its program of events focusing on a two-fold purpose. The first objective was to develop the athletic ability of girls by encouraging their participation in after-school sports and to increase competitive spirit by organizing inter-class and individual tournaments. Interscholastic tennis meets with other schools also increased the girls' enthusiasm by acquainting them with others sharing common interests.

The second purpose of the GAA was to emphasize the close relationship between athletics and social functions by sponsoring such activities as a Christmas party, and a date fun night. Led by advisor Mrs. Marilyn McBride, the GAA enjoyed a growing membership and boasted a roster of successful events, each directed toward enriching the girls' athletic program.

boys' chorus rehearses for role in spring performance

The Boys' Chorus met three times each week and practiced not only to improve their voices, but also to learn to read and interpret harmony, and to follow the commanding hand of Mr. Irwin Bell, director. The Boys' Chorus performed at public functions throughout the year and also provided entertainment for the student body at the Christmas assembly. Striving to become eligible for membership in the choir, these 65 young men upheld the fine tradition already established by the other Proviso vocal organizations.

daily preparation through intense rehearsal prepares girls for choral appearance

Comprising an important quarter of the vocal phase of musical organizations, the Advanced Girls' Chorus presented excellent programs of vocalization to both the students of Proviso and the residents of nearby communities. Advanced Girls' Chorus also provided girls with the opportunity to sing often and to take part in singing some of the great songs of the world. This practice kept the girls' voices in tone and led many girls into choir at the end of the year. The 110 members of the Advanced Girls' Chorus responded vocally to the direction of Mr. Irwin Bell, thus producing the rich tonal sound which brings acclaim to the many musical groups at Proviso.

After third period rehearsal, hurried Choir members crowd around the music case to put away concert scores.

Directed by Mr. Irwin Bell, the Choir performed throughout the year for the entertainment of the student body. The music schedule included Christmas and spring choral concerts, school assemblies and programs, and performances at community functions which filled the year's program with musical entertainment. In addition, this versatile Choir caroled through the halls during the holiday season and also helped provide the musical setting for "South Pacific."

Each year the eighty-voice choir selected worthy members to attend the summer music camp at the University of Wisconsin. In May, the Choir sponsored a joint banquet with Proviso East in order to present awards for outstanding service to the senior of the year and to the underclassman of the year.

On October 6, 1961, seventy seniors received notification of their selection as members of the National Honor Society, chosen as a result of their high scholastic standing, top character ratings, and record of outstanding school service. NHS officers, with the help of Mr. John Slimmer, collected dues and planned the annual NHS banquet.

"I believe in Character as the foundation of Life; in Scholarship as a means to Achievement; in Leadership as a Worthy Aim; and in Service as the object and end of Living; to the upholding of these Ideals, I now pledge myself, mind and spirit." These ideals were those to which the newly elected members pledged themselves in the Little Theater on the evening of October 26, 1961. Following the induction, the guests proceeded to the cafeteria for the banquet. The guest speaker for the occasion was Dr. Carleton Rogers, Presbyterian minister, who delivered a stimulating address on the modern philosophy of life.

Maintaining a scholarship rating of at least 2.0, the members realized their honored position and upheld the high standards of the National Honor Society.

Coach Joe Hartley's varsity harriers took their third championship trophy in the Interim Conference meet. Barney Peterson won individual honors, while Chuck Bertoncini, Pat LaVan, Rich Wood, and Brian Incrocci rounded out the Cat's scoring. Winning six of ten dual meets, the team captured second place in the league. At the district cross-country meet in LaGrange, the thinclads finished sixth as a team. Peterson qualified for the state meet by taking second. At Urbana, Peterson placed third behind Bartel of Wheaton and Weinert of Highland Park in a field of over two hundred runners.

When Prospect beat Proviso West's sophomore rabbit chasers, it was the first time in West's history that a sophomore Panther cross-country team had lost a dual meet. Four sophomore squads had completed a string of 30 consecutive dual victories. The boys finished fourth in the twelve team conference and placed fourth in the league meet.

varsity gridders win second place in league conference

Proviso's varsity gridders placed second in the Interim League, one-half game behind Niles West. Wheaton dealt the Panthers their only loss of the season to dampen West's first homecoming. After a 53-13 romp over Deerfield, Coach Maechtle's athletes broke Prospect's string of eighteen victories by shutting out the Knights. The Cat defense, led by Ed Silkaitis and Jim Weber, excelled throughout the season, while the explosive running of Bill Silhan and Logan Dugaw keyed the offensive eleven.

The jay-vee, sophomore, and frosh "A" football squads compiled identical records of two wins and six losses. A second half rally of 27 points overcame a 21-point deficit and helped the frosh "A" team defeat Wheaton's Tigers. The freshmen "B" team finished the season with an impressive record of five and three.

The varsity swimmers completed an outstanding season with a 13-2-0 record which placed them second in the Interim League. In the Riverside-Brookfield Invitational Coach Walter Cryer's Panthers placed fourth out of twenty-one teams. Clark Van Cleave finished second in the fifty yard free style and third in the hundred yard free style; Frank Novak took second in the hundred yard free style. Van Cleave paced the team to second place in the Interim League by setting a league record in the 400 yard free style and tying for first in the 200 yard individual medley.

The 200 yard free style relay team of Wayne Stevenson, Bill Dahl, Doug Reagan, and Frank Novak set a league record, and Ken Shaw won the hundred yard breaststroke. The Cats placed third out of fourteen teams in the district championship qualifying Jim Jakowich and the 200 yard free style relay team for the state finals. There the relay team placed sixth and established a new school record. Jim Percy was voted the most valuable senior and Clark Van Cleave the most valuable junior swimmer.

Proviso's varsity basketball team won five of twenty-one games this year, but Coach Joe Hartley can look to successful seasons in the following two years. Besides Chuck Simons and John Hobart, the two sophomores who achieved first string varsity status, the sophomore squad itself completed an excellent season.

Playmaker Logan Duyaw received honorable mention from the Interim League coaches and was chosen as the team's most valuable senior.

Sophomore coach, Bill Heald, saw his team compile a twelve and two record, finishing second in the Interim League. Leon Eskildsen and Frank Yaccino were key figures in the sophomore's title quest. The freshman team completed its year of competition and finished ninth in the conference.

The 1961-62 winter sport season was the date of the first Proviso West Holiday Basketball Tournament. Eight teams competed this year, with Maine East upsetting Morton West for the championship trophy. Plans have been made to extend the tournament invitations to sixteen teams next year.

Al Lipper also gained a district title while Jim Weber and Ron Schmidt took seconds. Jim Mentz compiled an outstanding slate of 12 and 2 to be named to the Interim League wrestling team. The Panther matmen as a team placed ninth in the conference.

The jay-vee, sophomore, and freshman wrestling squads all ended the season in ninth position. The jay-vee grapplers won only one of 14 matches. At the sophomore Waukegan invitational Jerry Nyckel captured the 133-pound division championship, but the soph team won only three meets. Winning only four, the freshman squad looked ahead to an improved season next year.

silhan paces state finalists by capturing all-around crown

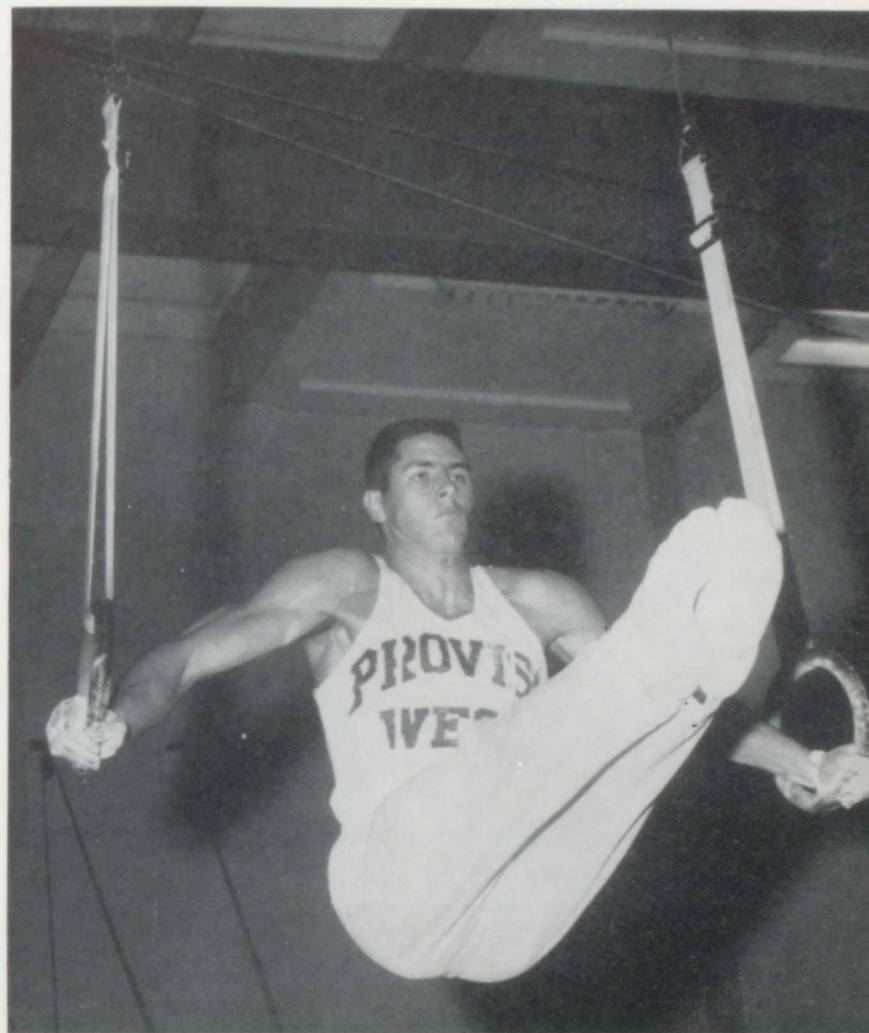

Fourteen wins and two losses made this a banner season for the Proviso West gymnasts. The Panthers placed second in the district meet. Carl del Bono, Mike Jacki, and Bill Silhan won gold medals in the parallel bars, tumbling, and the horizontal bar events, respectively. Proviso West got its first state gymnastics champion when Bill Silhan out scored all other contestants in the all-around event at the state championships. Silhan was also high scorer for the team with twenty-five first place positions in dual meet competition. Dave Gentile and Mike Jacki also ranked among the top ten state gymnasts in their separate events.

On the surface of the sophomore gymnastics picture, prospects did not seem quite as bright. The Panthers placed seventh in the conference and won only three of seventeen dual meets. However, two of the best sophomores on the squad, Mike Jacki and Gerry Bulmann, were elevated to the varsity level.

The second annual gymnastics extravaganza wound up the season for both East and West varsity squads.

Last year the Panthers won four matches and placed sixth in the Interim League. Rick Smith qualified for the state tourney by placing fifth in the district meet. This year the team opened the season by defeating York on April 13 and Morton East on April 4.

Paced by Smith and sophomore Don Damm, the Panthers posed a heavy threat to the Interim League crown. Other standout members of the team were Tom Loesch, Jim McMahon, George Cascino, and Less Horne.

The sophomore squad also showed promise for a winning season. Bob Gros, Paul Sindelar, John Majerczyk, and John Rosemond were the top golfers for the sophs who won their first game of the season against the Morton sophomores.

The second season indoor track record at West showed great improvement over the first. At the Naperville Relays last year the Cats placed fourth in a field of thirty-four. This year fans witnessed the cindermen capture the team trophy. Herb Steinkraus won both hurdle events while Barney Petersen and Ken Hermach paced the relay teams. After taking sixth in the "Big Ten" last year, Coach Rex Griep's trackmen climbed to third place. Steinkraus set two hurdle records and Petersen broke the 880 and 1000 yard run marks.

Mike Blakely, Jim Letterer, and Tom Mara were the top sophomore cindermen. Blakely took firsts in his specialty, the shotput, at the "Big Ten" meet and the Interim League meet. prospects optimistic as west diamondmen display spirit and experience on the field

Two years ago, as sophomores, this season's varsity baseball squad won the Interim League title. Last year the Panthers won the district championship. This year the team sights were even higher. Although the diamondmen had no hurlers of the Terry Doerzaph and Tony Niketopoulos caliber, the overall depth of the squad supplied the team with a more solid infield and a powerful offensive attack. The splitting of the league into two separate divisions, red and blue, also aided the Panthers' chance for success. West opened their sixteen game schedule against Hinsdale April 3.

Proviso West's opening loss to York by a score of 5-0 indicated the bleak season ahead for Coach Wadsworth, who was obviously planning for the future when he played two sophomores and a freshman consistently in varsity competition. Not yet realizing that being a senior involves more than a title and a ring, the upperclassman returned to Proviso West. Fully knowing that he will no longer be overshadowed by the perennially reigning class, the senior was swamped with the thoughts of his position and responsibilities. Looking eagerly toward the future, the senior adopted the conventional philosophy of making the "last year the best." Entangled with his own confused thoughts of the present fleeting year and the unknown future, the senior spent a year laughing, studying, meditating.

Pondering his status as a student, meditating his future importance, the junior slowly began to realize that life does not end with high school graduation. Reaching further than before, the junior searched for a firm philosophy upon which to mold his life. Longing to be considered an adult, yet reluctant to surrender his teen-age behavior, the junior wandered through a year of plans and disappointments. Midway between red book and diploma stood the junior.

Understanding that his position is no longer that of a wondering neophyte, the sophomore searched for a niche in Proviso. He entered the second year slump, not always realizing the importance of this year as a framework for the future. With his position reflected in the remarks of upperclassmen, he turned to the freshmen for approval and appreciation. The sophomore also enjoyed his first class dance and sported an upperclass attitude at fun nights and athletic contests. Looking forward anxiously to the junior year and backward wistfully on the freshman year, the sophomore participated in varsity athletics and anticipated the chance to hold an organization office. Enjoying the second quarter of the high school term, the sophomore hesitantly relinquished his youthful ways for the responsibilities of maturity.

Upon entering a new way of life, the freshman contemplated the why's and wherefore's of high school. Although he possessed a feeling of inner pride for his freshman rank, the novice frequently expressed embarrassment and longed for the day when he could look back on this year so full of firsts. The freshman was an insecure student, hoping for success but not knowing exactly how to earn it. He took the feeling of independence in stride and began to gain confidence as the year passed, coming closer to the realization that freshman year is a unique period in his life. For the first time the freshman felt what it was like to be considered an adult; he worked toward self-reliance, looking to the senior for knowledge, help, and guidance. Not yet realizing how much he had to learn, the freshman fitted himself into the tradition of Proviso.

Many times the scene pictured here was seen in B-310, the Mural workshop. After long hours of mental anguish trying desperately to fill vacant copy blocks, to write glittering headlines, and to crop impressive photographs, everyone was ready for complete collapse. When the final deadline for the year had passed, few really believed that the 1962 Mural was finished.

Many traced the book's gradual development process, beginning with initial planning last spring. Staff meetings throughout the summer made possible further planning, revision, and final decisions. And beginning in the fall, copy sheets, dummy, photographs, galley proofs, and page proofs became our center of attention. Used effectively and combined artfully, these instruments constitute a pleasing and interesting yearbook. We hope we have succeeded in our aim to produce such a book, presenting a thorough panorama of life at West.

This job, however, we did not accomplish by ourselves. Acknowledgment must go to Mr. William Snell of the S. K. Smith Cover Company for our excellent yearbook cover. Special gratitude must be paid to our photographer, Mr. Lennie Novak of Root Studios, who so masterfully recorded our thoughts in pictures. Particular thanks go to Mr. Larry Wells of Associates Engraving Company who helped initiate and develop our way-out ideas in yearbook design and who worked throughout the year to carry out these plans. Mr. Norman Semmelroth of Record Printing and Advertising Company certainly deserves commendation for his assistance and long hours of work spent in printing our book.

Miss Wilma Buchholz receives a well-earned round of applause for her careful and exact handling of the Mural's finances and business matters.

To Mrs. Carol DeRuiter, our jolly advisor, we extend a standing ovation for unending moments of worry and concern, her encouraging remarks in times of distress, and other such details which make me glad to have been a part of this enterprise.
